"I TOLD YOU SO," SAYS WILL; DIDN'T NEED TO SEE PAPER

(Special To The News)
KINGMAN, Ariz., Sept. 27.—
Flying alone on a five trip, Landed for gas at Kingman, will arrive in Los Angeles in a couple more hours.

The whole outburst never looked more wicked and pretty.

I told you yesterday I could guess what was in the papers and it was. Senate still arguing over tariff.
This time with the president.

The law says he can change various duties, if he sees fit.
That's what is called flexible.
Well, the senate says that gives him too much authority; that they themselves are the ones that are really competent to do that.

Now you tell me.
Yours
WILL ROGERS.

PA NEW OBSERVES

A well known local doctor, who met
Pa News in the lobby of the Post-Office last night, said that he believed the ventilation in the lobby was exceedingly poor. Something should be done to get better ventilation in a place where so many people assemble, he believed.

Tomorrow is the big day for Leesburgh. Plans are complete for the celebration.

East New Castle takes on the appearance of a big oil and gas centre these days. There are fifteen or twenty big storage tanks for oil and gas in the vicinity, it appearing to be the central point for these industries.

The detour is still in use near Cascade Park. The bridge seems to be complete over the B. & P. tracks, but the stretch of paving is not as yet done. In fact, it does not appear to have been started. The repaving is not a big job so that it is hoped it will be completed in a short time after started. The contractor has been let. It would be most unpleasant to have to travel this detour, once bad weather sets in.

Next Sunday is rally day for the churches and Sunday schools. Most all of the congregations of the city are making plans for special observance of the occasion.

Fire Prevention Week comes this year during the week of October 6 to 12. Railroads operating through New Castle are preparing to cooperate in every way that it is possible for them to do so. On safety bulletins in local offices are posted cards carrying fire prevention messages.

Painters are at work giving the big plant of the National Radiator Company out near Cascade Park, a coat of red paint.

Every now and then this problem of sending fire trucks to the townships surrounding the city boils up.
Some permanent arrangement should be entered into between the city and townships so that there would be no hesitation about what course to follow when an emergency arises.

New Castle Booster club is arranging for an open forum on the matter of the vote of New Castle citizens on the bond issue that comes up at the November election. This is a good move. The forum however should be limited to those who reside in the city of New Castle and are tax payers here.

New Castle will be host on Saturday to another delegation of world war veterans, the 32nd Light Field Artillery meeting here. Several hundred will be in attendance. Requests are made that they be put out downtown as a tribute to the veterans.

Pa News saw yesterday on East North street what he believes would be listed as one of the ugliest seen here. It was a Pennsylvania license No. E82-025. The figure represents almost a million and a half or 1,482,025.
Another higher?

HAVANA FEELS EDGE OF STORM

Florida Residents Are Rejoicing Over Detour Of

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)
MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 27.—All fear that Miami would be swept by a hurricane was dispelled today when Richard W. Gray, local meteorologist, issued the following statement at ten a. m.:
"The storm this morning at 8 o'clock was apparently located about a hundred miles south of Miami and 175 miles east of Key West. It may cause winds of moderate gale force (from 39 to 46 miles per hour) at Miami today or tonight, but there is no danger of hurricane winds. There is no need for any further alarm."

HAVANA, Sept. 27.—High winds which pounded the surf against the Havana seawall with a roar like a cannon fissile with the only sign Havana saw today of the tropical storm which has been raging in circles about the West Indies for the last seventy-two hours.

Although for a time it was feared that the hurricane, which apparently has turned back toward the Bahamas after skirting the Florida coast, might strike Cuba in all its fury, opinion was expressed by meteorologists that Havana is in no danger.

Back To Bahamas
The belief is held here that the storm will whirl its way back to the Bahamas on a course that will take it mid-way between Florida and Cuba, and the indications are that it will have spent its force before any real damage is done.

Radio communication has been established with the Italian freighter Laconia, bound from Galveston, Tex., to Marseilles. The captain of the vessel, which apparently was in the direct course of the hurricane, advised that all was well.

There is still considerable concern here over the effect the storm has had in the Bahamas, however. Efforts to communicate with Nassau, which has been out of touch with the world for hours, were abandoned early today. They will be resumed later in the forenoon. It is assumed that

Trial Of Former Police Near End

Jury May Get Pittsburgh
Case During Late Afternoon

FORMER OFFICERS DENY CHARGES

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—Closing arguments today occupied the court session in the trial of the three former coal and iron policemen who are charged with beating John Borkowski, Tyre miner, to death in the barracks of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at Imperial, Pa., on the night of February 19.

Taking of testimony was concluded late yesterday as defense counsel for Walter J. Lyster, Harold P. Watts and Frank Slapikis sought to show that Borkowski had stabbed Watts while resisting arrest on a liquor charge.
The three defendants took the stand yesterday and denied the full testimony of prosecution witnesses that they beat, kicked and tortured the miner after he was taken to the barracks of the coal company.

Following closing arguments which are expected to occupy most of the day, it was expected that the judge's charge to the jury would be completed in time to allow the case to go to the jury late this afternoon.

SEES STEEL PROSPERITY FOR HUNDRED YEARS

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—Prosperity will smile on steel manufacturing for at least 100 years, Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, predicted in an interview here following his arrival from an inspection trip of the steel mills in the Wheeling district.

While Schwab's statement was made primarily in regard to the steel industries in the Pittsburgh section, it was interpreted as being a forecast of the outlook for the steel industry of the country. Schwab made a brief visit here, last night attending the housewarming dinner at the new quarters of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, at which he was the guest of honor.

"Pittsburgh's tradition for steel manufacturing means Pittsburgh will be prosperous for at least the next 100 years," Schwab replied in answer to a question regarding the prospects of local steel manufacturing plants. "I see no occasion to forecast other than prosperous business conditions," he added.

Senate Awaits Hoover's Reply On Tariff Bill

Senate Expects President To Make Prompt Reply To Borah's Demand

BELIEVE HOOVER'S MOVE UNWISE

Political Mis-Step Is Opinion Of Observers On His Tariff Action

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff
Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The point of interest in the tariff fight shifted to the White House today as the senate, still debating the flexible provision, awaited a statement from President Hoover as to whether the new tariff bill carries out his personal campaign pledges of last fall.

The senate expected the President to make a prompt reply to the challenge of Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, now leading the insurgent revolt against Hoover's tariff leadership. Borah demanded that the President, having broken his silence to endorse the flexible feature, now state his position on the new industrial and agricultural rates and his attitude toward the measure as a whole.

Political Blunder
It was the unanimous verdict on Capitol Hill, among Republicans as well as Democrats, that the President had blundered politically by entering the tariff war. It was felt he would have profited more by remaining silent until the bill reached the White House for his approval. A course publicly advocated by Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican floor leader.

Administration leaders also anticipated the President would decline to enter debate on the subject of rates, the senate itself on the subject of rates.

Foresee President's Reply
It was felt the President, in replying to Borah, would announce he had intervened in the flexible "alibi," because that provision directly affected the Presidential powers—an authority in which the President is directly and personally interested. It was felt too he would dismiss the subject of rates by declaring it a "legislative" function in which the President has no interest until the bill

BUS PLUNGES OVER HILLSIDE

Three Are Injured In Bus Ac-

Ohio

(International News Service)
STUEBENVILLE, O., Sept. 27.—
Three men were in the Ohio Valley hospital here today, suffering from injuries received when a Union Lines bus, en route from Detroit to Pittsburgh, swerved from the road and plunged down a 100 foot hillside near here last night.

The injured are: Pete Broski, 30, of Wellsburg, W. Va., driver of the bus, who was seriously injured; George Williams, 30, negro, of this city; and John Scordilis, 40, of Follansbee, W.
Va., who suffered a possible skull fracture.

Williams said the bus was traveling easily, apparently under control, when it suddenly swerved across the road and shot down over the hill. "It was rolling over a number of times," Broski was driving his first trip for the company when the accident occurred.

Colorado Banker Is Arraign-

Morning

NOT GUILTY PLEA FORMALLY GIVEN

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Charles Delos Waggoner, Telluride, Colo., bank president, today pleaded not guilty to six counts of arranging the mails to defraud when arraigned before Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy. Trial of the case, in which Waggoner is accused of mulcting six New York banks of $500,000 was set for October 4.

The banker appeared an interested spectator during the proceedings, entering the courtroom with hands in pockets and nonchalantly entering the plea. He is held in $100,000 bail and was in custody of United States marshals.

After the plea was entered, United States Attorney Charles Tuttle asked for an early trial and the date was set as October 4 after a conference between opposing counsel.

Tuttle said he would attempt to get witnesses here from Colorado to testify against Waggoner.

Rabenholt said his case was prepared except for a more careful perusal of the letters sent by Waggoner to each of the six New York banks.

(International News Service)
WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—
Frances Newman, confessed inamor-

in his trial for the murder of his wife Dolly, will abandon her career of dance hall hostessing to marry "Wil-youthful torch slayer leaves his jail, she revealed today.

Frances will find herself in posses-had in her life, when the trial comes to an end. This sum represents the "salary" of $3 a day that has been paid her ever since her confinement last spring as a material witness in the murder case.

Girl Accidentally Shot By Youth

(International News Service)

was dead today, the victim of an accidental shooting. Her cousin, Wal-shots from a rifle at a hawk and was preparing to shoot again when the girl ran in front of the gun as it accidentally discharged, the bullet striking her in the stomach. She died in the Allegheny Valley hospital here a few hours later.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

COURTHOUSE, WHITE PLAINS,
N. Y., Sept. 27.—In an impassioned plea to the jury today at the trial of Earle K. Peacock for the murder of his wife, Dorothy, defense attorney Sidney A. Syme declared that "this young defendant has had the hardest and most terrible breaks in life ever crowded upon the shoulders of a human being."

The tall, bespectacled, crinkly-haired attorney warned the jurors of their "grave responsibility." He scoffed at the state's claim that the crime was "premeditated" and added:
"This boy should not have to pay with his life for what he did."

"You have got to be big enough to say that he is not guilty," declared Syme.

Needed Money Is Bandit's Plea

Man Captured For Pittsburgh
Robbery To Get Hearing

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—The negro bandit who yesterday held up the Merchants Savings and Trust Company here, fleeing in a taxi-cab only to be captured about forty minutes later, today was to be given a hearing on charges of bank robbery.

The bandit gave his name as Scott Wainwright, saying that he had held up the bank because he needed money and could not get a job, according to police reports. He forced Teller E.
J. Stack to hand over $5,444 at the point of a gun, ran out the door and jumped into a waiting cab.

Mourning the gun openly he ordered the driver, Jacob T. Ketter, to "take me for a ride" but after about a half hour of driving through traffic on the South Side, Wainwright left the car and started climbing a hill
tracks. Ketter notified police and the bandit was captured a few minutes later.

ATLANTA, Sept. 27.— Consternation spread through the Lowlands of flood-wise Georgia today as streams left their banks and highway after highway fell before the onslaught of tortuous overflows.

Caught on the fringe of the Cardeluged by incessant rains for five days. With the situation already assuming cataclysmal proportions, no let-up in rain was seen for the next

Many Homeless
Hundreds of lowland residents have been forced to leave their homes for claimed a score of lives fresh in their memory, were abandoning their homesteads.

Numerous highways and bridges have fallen before the rampant cas-in the wreck of a Central of Georgia heart trouble.

She had been ill two months and

The heart disease which caused her death was said to have been brought on by strenuous dancing and swim-

Myrna came to Broadway from

MacDonald To Sail Tonight

British Prime Minister Will Leave For U. S. Visit

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Departure of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald for America tonight will be anything but an uneventful proceeding.

In spite of the premier's expressed desire for privacy when he leaves Downing street this evening for Southampton, where he will board the Berengaria early tomorrow, his supporters have arranged a considerable demonstration to the station, where a massive farewell demonstration is planned.

They are expected to mass in the narrow street in front of the premier's house when he and his family party, including his daughter, Ethel, proceed to Waterloo station.

Severals of Premier MacDonald's countrymen have come down from Scotland.

United States Ambassador Charles C. Davis, will accompany Premier MacDonald as far as the station, where members of the cabinet and leaders of the Labor party will be on hand for the farewell.

Aboard the Berengaria, Premier MacDonald and his party will occupy the suite built for the former German Kaiser when the ship was the German Imperator.

The party is scheduled to arrive in New York on October 4.

Premier MacDonald will leave immediately for Washington, where he will confer with President Hoover. After six days in Washington he will visit Philadelphia and Canada, returning to Britain October 25.

Alfred Owens New Leader Of Phalanx

Elected To Position Held By Jack Boyles, Club's New Mentor

Nineteen members of the New Castle Phalanx fraternity were present for the organization's regular weekly meeting Thursday night and took part in the reorganization of the fraternity. Jack Boyles, president of the organization for the past year and re-elected to that office but a week ago, was chosen to succeed John Ray Preston as mentor of the club. Preston is leaving soon to spend some time in Arizona.

The resignation of Boyles as president left a vacancy and so the club immediately chose Alfred Owens who has served as secretary during Boyles' term to that office. Bruce Ewing was chosen to fill Owens' place as secretary, and Lyle McGrath was selected to fill Ewing's place on the fraternity tribunal.

Three new members, Elroy Lockley, Donald Thompson and Mike Boden were elected to membership last night. Most of the meeting was taken up with the discussion of plans for work this fall.

Police Station Walls Are Kept In Fine Shape

Since the office of the police department has been renovated and fixed up in first-class condition, there is one notable change that is attracting general attention.

Where there were innumerable bulletin boards, pictures, calendars and other articles placed on the wall, before the office was fixed up, now the wall is all the more noticeable because of the fact that the only things allowed on the courtroom walls is a picture of Abraham Lincoln, one of the country's greatest men and a picture of the late David Jameson, one of the city's greatest philanthropists. The only other thing permitted on the walls is a large framed map of Pennsylvania. It is a decided improvement.

Reporters hastened to St. Vincent sur Jard when it was recently reported that Mr. Clemenceau was ill. They surrounded "The Tiger's" automobile when he started for a ride. Seven hundred negroes at Hamburg, S. C. just across the state line, fled their homes when the Savannah went up along the Ocmulgee and Oconee rivers. Other streams were expected to leave their banks today.

Railroad traffic is disrupted. One railroad through South Georgia has suspended operation. Weather reports indicated that the swollen streams will rise steadily during the next few days.

Upper South Carolina also was menaced by flood waters. All streams in that section were reported rising at an alarming rate. Four cavalrymen narrowly escaped with their lives when a flood overflow swept them from their horses near Columbia, S. C. They clung to tree tops for four hours until boats could rescue them. A dozen horses drowned.

reaches him as a prospective law. This would give him an "out" from a political situation, which has greatly embarrassed his friends on Capitol Hill.

The actual effect of the President's action on the flexible tariff battle was highly disastrous. A poll among administration leaders indicated the President's intervention had won no new converts and had lost at least two votes for the provision. It was said that two independent Republican senators, who sometimes vote with the administration and sometimes vote against it, had decided to oppose the flexible provision since the President advocated its re-enactment. Both based their decision on a belief that the President was seeking to grasp more power from congress.

With a possibility that the provision may be retained or rejected by the margin of one or two votes, administration leaders plainly were worried over the outcome. If the provision should be defeated by so small a margin, they undoubtedly will place the blame on the President.

the jurors today as he made an impassioned plea to save the young radio technician and dance hall "sheik" from the electric chair for strangling his twenty-year old bride Dorothy on their first wedding anniversary April 21, last.

The district attorney, Frank H. Coyne, was not a party to the alleged "frame up." Syme quickly added, however.

Syme was theatrical at times during his oration. Once in contending Peacock did not premeditate the crime, he turned to Mrs. Catherine Peacock, the defendant's black-garbed mother, sitting at her son's side, and cried:

"Not any more than I am premeditating the murder of this poor unfortunate mother."

Mrs. Peacock wept. Her heavy-set frame shook convulsively. She removed her spectacles and wiped her eyes.

BELIEVE FLORIDA SAFE FROM STORM AS COURSE VEERS

the wireless antennae at Nassau, principal city of the Bahama group, was wrecked by the eighty mile gale which is reported to have swept the islands yesterday, but reports that have seeped through from sources other than Nassau indicate that the islands escaped with but little damage.

Watch Weather

Meteorologists of the Cuban National Observatory and the Beloit Jesuit College Observatory here are keeping a careful check on all weather changes. The hurricane appears still to be remaining in a stationary position.

A slight shift in the wind to the west is reported, bolstering hopes that the storm may be swept out of Cuba's path.

In order to guard against damage to shipping, storm warnings have been issued to all vessels in the Florida Straits and the vicinity of the Keys. Airplane service has been suspended.

First hint of the approaching storm came suddenly, when a sunlit sky darkened over in a moment and the ordinarily calm waters of the Gulf were churned into fitful swells. Soon the waves were crashing against the sea-wall with terrific impact, sending showers of spray far above the bulkhead and into the street.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Like an upraised fist, the tropical hurricane still threatens the Florida east coast but the weather bureau was unable to say this morning whether the blow will land.

The following bulletin was issued by the weather bureau at 10 a. m. "The tropical disturbance has moved very little during the last 24 hours. It is apparently centered this morning a short distance south or southwest of Andros Island, Bahamas. It has apparently diminished somewhat in intensity but gales and probably winds of hurricane force likely prevail near its center. Its rate of movement will continue slow with direction uncertain during the next 24 hours. Storm warnings remain displayed from Key West to Jupiter, Fla."

MIAMI, Sept. 27.—After hours of anxiety that the tropical hurricane sweeping the West Indies would crash with devastating force on the Florida coast, tension was relieved throughout the southeastern part of the state today with news that the storm had veered and now might miss Florida altogether.

The hurricane has re-curved to the southward, moving slowly, and is apparently headed back to the Bahamas, whence it came. There is still a grave possibility that the tail of the receding storm may hit Miami and residents of the Keys have been warned to prepare for winds of gale force within the next 24 hours. But the general feeling is that the worst danger is now past.

Reports received by the tropical radio station here from the Italian freighter Laconia, which is in the hurricane area, strengthened the belief of weather officials that the storm would miss Miami.

The vessel, in a position 24.43 north latitude and 80.34 west longitude, a point approximately 100 miles south southwest of Miami, wireless that the barometer reading was 29.30, the lowest yet reported, indicating the ship was near the storm's center.

The position given was at the northern end of the Florida straits. A W. Brooks, assistant to Richard W. Gray, government meteorologist, said the ship's report indicated the storm is of small diameter and moving southward.

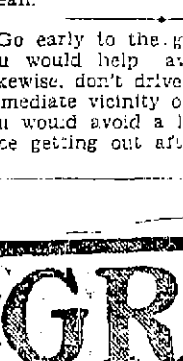

After advising that his ship was encountering no difficulty, the captain of the Laconia wireless.

"Wind from south suddenly shifting to northeast and is increasing. Sky mostly overcast. Barometer 29.35, rising slowly. Temperature 83.5 Fahr., passing showers with moderate visibility."

Weather officials said this shift in the storm meant nothing to Miami in view of the general characteristics of the storm.

With the exception of heavy seas, there was no indication here early today of the storm raging out in the ocean.

Go early to the game tonight. If you would help avoid congestion. Likewise, don't drive your car to the immediate vicinity of the stadium if you would avoid a lot of inconvenience getting out after the game.

PLANET NEPTUNE DISCOVERED IN 1846

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

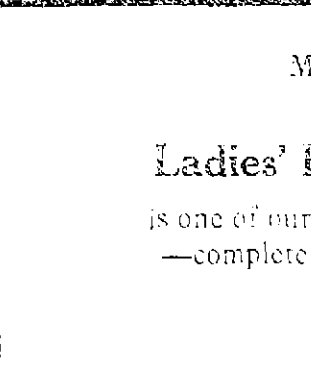

The planet Neptune was discovered, not by a casual survey of the heavens with a telescope, but by a careful analysis of the perturbations (disturbances) of Neptune. The latter was behaving in a manner which indicated that there might be another planet interfering with its orbital course. Adams of England and Leverrier of France independently computed the location of the undiscovered planet in accordance with the principles laid down by Sir Isaac Newton for the law of gravitation. Though Leverrier's work was first put to the test at the observatory, the computing Adams did give him equal share in the honors of the new discovery.

However, it was by means of the Frenchman's computations that Neptune was discovered.

Street Car To Run Like Auto
Is Latest Idea

(International News Service)
SCIENTIFICALLY. Sept. 27.—Street cars can now be chauffeur'd as well as motor-manner, which increased benefits of speed, safety and comfort to the traveling public.
Successful experiments with a street car which is operated in exactly the same manner as an automobile, with the foot instead of the hands, has been made in Albany, N. Y., the General Electric company announced.

Speedy Loading.
This car was electrically equipped with particular reference to speedier loading and more rapid acceleration and braking. Foot control gives the operator free use of his hands to open and close the door and to make change for passengers without loss of time.

In handling the car he has his feet upon pedals in the floor of the conductor's cab. He applies the power by pressing the ball of his left foot upon an accelerator. Under normal conditions he brakes the car with his right foot, but in case of emergency he stops the car instantly by raising the heel of his left foot.

The extra brake is called the track brake, and clamps down upon the rails between the trucks, adding a safety feature of great value in streets of dense traffic flow.

Faster Operation.
There are also the regular shoe-brakes, air-operated, the emergency dynamic braking system common to electric motors, and a hand brake.

This car upon being tested was found to be capable of a decrease from 15 to 20 per cent in the time required to go over its route. It has a seating capacity of 43 passengers, is equipped with leather upholstered seats and has special non-resonant springs as well as noise deadeners on the wheels.

It is of light weight and its four motors of 35 horsepower capacity are built for low-wheel service.

Find Connecticut Cars
Lack Safety Devices

(International News Service)
HARTFORD, Sept. 27.—Surprise check-ups of motor vehicles on Connecticut highways found defective safety equipment on sixty-five per cent of the cars. Broken in bad condition reached to sixty-two per cent of cars examined, while thirty per cent were without some item of equipment required by law.

As a result the state police are to keep on inspecting the cars indefinitely. Car owners whose equipment is defective are given two weeks to have repairs made, and in the first test period very few ran over the time limit.

SAILOR SHOULD STAY AT SEA
TONAWANDA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—
Cobblers should stick to their lasts and sailors should stick to the sea.
Frank Golt, 34, a sailor on an Erie Canal steamer, learned this maxim when he was arrested here for driving an automobile while intoxicated.
Golt pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a fine of $110.

TREES BLOOM AND BEAR FRUIT AT SAME TIME

HIBBING, Minn., Sept. 27.—Everbearing berry bushes with their cortinual blooming and fruit production are common things, but when apple trees do likewise then the uncommon occurs.
Anyway, last spring George Grenner transplanted two crabapple trees on his estate at Sturgeon Lake and this fall these same trees are bearing fruit on one side and blooming on the other.

Champion Kite Stays
In Air For 43 Hours

(International News Service)
BERNE, Ind., Sept. 27.—Orville Stauffer, 13, is the world's champion kite flyer, he believes. The town of Berne holds this belief too, for it put on a community celebration when young Stauffer captured the record.
The Stauffer boy flew his kite "The Spirit of Berne" continuously for 43 hours and 50 seconds. This broke the former record of 22 hours and 22 seconds established at Passaic, N. J.
The kite remained in the air two nights and was watched during the entire time. It was finally taken down voluntarily when rain threatened.

Dry Summer To Curtail Crops In New England

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Effects of the prolonged summer drought will be reflected in the supply and price of certain agricultural products this fall, according to reports submitted to the New England council by commissioners of agriculture in the New England states.

In Maine Commissioner Frank Washburn reports, apples needed water badly and many pastures dried up. Potatoes in Aroostook county escaped injury, but those in central Maine were hard hit. Neither hay nor corn was affected to any considerable extent by the dryness.

Potato Crop Hit.
Potato production in New Hampshire was curtailed by the excessive dryness, as was the hay crop, and the apple and berry yield. The northern portion of the state was more fortunate in this respect than the southern. Milk and vegetable crops also felt the effects of the drought.

In Vermont the central and northern portions escaped the drought, according to Commissioner R. H. Jones. The southern section of the state, however, was severely affected by the long dry spell. Most serious losses were suffered by farmers depending largely upon milk and dairy products.

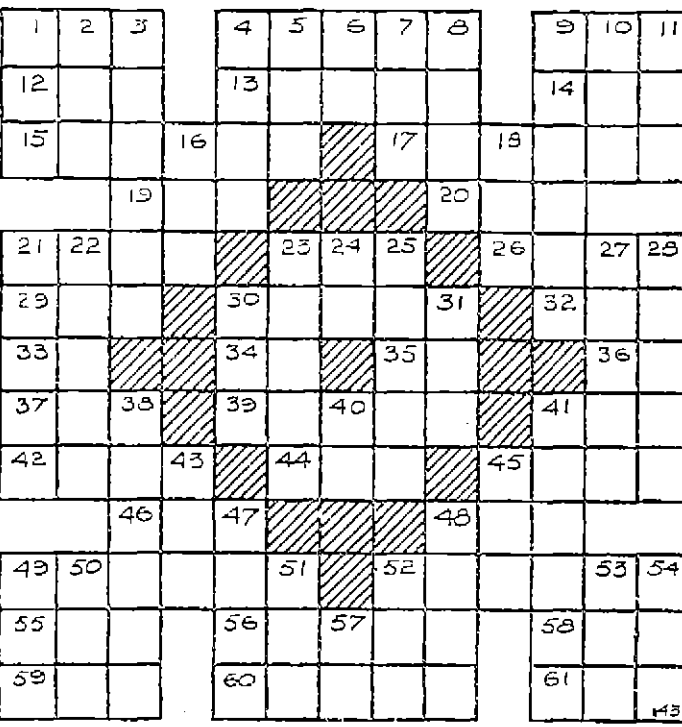

Massachusetts crops were materially affected by the drought. Dr. Arthur Gilbert, commissioner of agriculture, announced: "The crop which suffered most from the excessive dryness of August was sweet corn, whose yield dropped off one-third from the expected output. Tobacco has been retarded some and small fruit and vegetables severely hit. Pasture land was a heavy sufferer. The potato crop was affected only to a small extent and the onion crop not at all. Increased acreage in most crops maintained the total output at a high level."

Farmers Face Loss.
Harry R. Lewis, Rhode Island's agricultural commissioner, estimated that Rhode Island farmers will probably lose in the neighborhood of a million dollars. Losses in the truck gardening area were severe. Corn and potatoes have been the chief victims of the drought among the vegetables, and peaches and grapes in the fruit kingdom. Recent rains have done much to alleviate the situation. Losses from forest fires have been unusually heavy.

Pasture and hay crops were the most seriously affected in Connecticut, Commissioner of Agriculture S. McLean Buckingham has revealed. In addition, small fruits have been reduced by about 50 per cent. With the exception of tomatoes vegetables have not been materially affected.

A British doctor says the bathroom is the most restful room in the house. This was discovered years ago by plumbers.—The Bay City Daily Times

Peter's Adventures in the Garden of Delight

Rocked by a gentle wind, the rose swayed upon its stem. As Peter tumbled off Dawdler's back and seated himself upon one of the rose's pink petals, he was sure never before in all his life had he been in a spot so delightful. Dawdler thought himself clever to have found such a pleasant place, and the pair decided to stop where they were for a while.

Dawdler, the lazy fellow, tipped his hat over his eyes, curled up and went to sleep. But Peter drowsy as he was, decided there was too much to be seen to shut his eyes even for a while.

Next to the rose where Peter sat, grew a slender lily that held its head high with an air that was royal. Next to Lily grew a petunia with white and red spots upon its petals. Nearby were a striped yellow tulip, and a scarlet poppy. Over in a corner, not far from the rose clump, a lilac bush, all but hid a clump of violets. Tall sweet peas in every color of the rainbow climbed up the garden fence, trying their level best to peep over the top. Just beside them, a great big sunflower turned up its face to receive the warm kisses of the sun it loved.

All the leaves of all the plants were green, and Peter never had guessed how many shades of green there could be until now he saw them together. All the centres of the blossoms Peter could glimpse were yellow.

"Are you comfortable?" whispered a voice so low that Peter had to bend down his head to listen. "If you will sit a bit more towards the center I can shade you with one of my outer petals. It's stop rocking if you'd like me to." It was the voice of the rose. Peter made haste to answer.

"I am very comfortable, indeed dear Rose," said he. "My friend is sound asleep, so I am sure he is satisfied. It is kind of you to be so thoughtful of our comfort when we took up quarters with you without an invitation."

Next: "Partners."

Hospital In Boston Offers Oxygen Chambers Free; Has Lost 83 Pounds

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—The oxygen chamber at the Beth Israel hospital here has been offered free to Peter Gail, Milford stenographer, who today entered his 171st consecutive day of hiccoughing, which Boston physicians believe eclipses any other known duration record of the disease without a cure.

Gail experienced the first attack of hiccoughs while at his trade of stenographer on April 4, and from that time to the present has been racked incessantly with apparent little prospect of being cured. He weighed 238 pounds and apparently was in excellent health when stricken. Today he weighs 155 pounds, a loss of eighty-three pounds.

His case has attracted wide attention in the medical profession and offers of treatment and suggested cures are forwarded to Gail's family continuously. For the past three weeks Gail has been living in a specially constructed hut on the fringe of some woods about a mile from his home in Milford, taking a fresh air cure and medication prescribed by his physician, Dr. Nicholas Capoe, but his hiccoughing continues, some spells lasting as much as eight hours.

Dr. Charles H. Wilensky, Director of the Beth Israel hospital, made known his offer of the oxygen chamber to sterning on April 4, and from that time to the present has been racked incessantly with apparent little prospect of being cured. He weighed 238 pounds and apparently was in excellent health when stricken. Today he weighs 155 pounds, a loss of eighty-three pounds.

Dr. Charles H. Wilensky, Director of the Beth Israel hospital, made known his offer of the oxygen chamber to day, but said this evening that Gail has not yet decided to come to Boston for treatment. The physician said he believed treatment in the oxygen chamber, which is known as the "Chamber of Life" because of various cures it has effected, might prove successful in Gail's case, although he would make no definite prediction to that effect or that the cure it effected would be permanent.

Army Veteran Returns After 31 Years To Find Baby Son Grown Man

MILFORD, Del., Sept. 27.—Thirty-one years ago George Hobbs of Milford enlisted in the army and left for the Philippines. He left behind him a small son, George Jr. He, with other Delawareans, served through the Aguinaldo campaign, then enlisted in the Philippine constabulary. He served for many years and finally was discharged from service.

He returned to this country and took up residence in San Francisco as a policeman, where he remained until recently, when the longing for the scenes of his boyhood days seized him.

When Hobbs returned to Delaware he found George Jr. a man with a family, residing at Somers Point, N. J. The son, accompanied by his wife and daughter, came here to visit his father.

Hobbs says that he intends to make Milford his home to be with friends and relatives.

LES SAHLES D'OLONNE, Sept. 27.—George Clouetier is once more sitting for the sculptor, Rene Godard, who is making a bust of the celebrated "Tiger." Since his illness, the ex-Premier has continually fussed about the world's anxiety in regard to his health and slight attack and wanted to know whether Monsieur Godard thought he would not be able to finish the bust before he died.

Preacher Heads

Indiana Militia

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 27.—Indiana has the only state adjutant general who is a preacher in this country in the person of the Rev. William Graham Everson of Muncie, Ind., recently appointed to head the state's national guard.

Not only has the Indiana preacher assumed active control of the Hoosier National Guard, but he has received his pastoral charge of the First Baptist church of Muncie. His interest in his pastoral charge is augmented by the fact that his congregation members only a few weeks ago built him a $348,000 church.

Everson's church service has been mixed with military activities for many years, he having risen from a private to a brigadier general in his country's defense.

Everson was a private in the Spanish-American war and during the World War he commanded 6,000 soldiers in six countries. As a colonel of infantry he headed the American Expeditionary forces in Italy and after the armistice was the American officer in command of soldiers stationed at Rome during the trying days when assumed active control of the Hoosier National Guard.

Hobbs says that he intends to make Milford his home to be with friends and relatives.

Everson's church service has been mixed with military activities for many years, he having risen from a private to a brigadier general in his country's defense.

Everson was a private in the Spanish-American war and during the World War he commanded 6,000 soldiers in six countries. As a colonel of infantry he headed the American Expeditionary forces in Italy and after the armistice was the American officer in command of soldiers stationed at Rome during the trying days when assumed active control of the Hoosier National Guard.

His interest in his pastoral charge is augmented by the fact that his congregation members only a few weeks ago built him a $348,000 church.

Army Veteran Returns After 31 Years To Find Baby Son Grown Man

MILFORD, Del., Sept. 27.—Thirty-one years ago George Hobbs of Milford enlisted in the army and left for the Philippines. He left behind him a small son, George Jr. He, with other Delawareans, served through the Aguinaldo campaign, then enlisted in the Philippine constabulary. He served for many years and finally was discharged from service.

When Hobbs returned to Delaware he found George Jr. a man with a family, residing at Somers Point, N. J. The son, accompanied by his wife and daughter, came here to visit his father.

Hobbs says that he intends to make Milford his home to be with friends and relatives.

Swansdown POWDERED SUGAR

"How light it is!"
"How wonderfully soft!"
... housewives say.

Pour a little Swansdown in the palm of your hand. Hold it in the light. How white it is! How light and wonderfully soft! That is why one housewife wrote us: "It is really more like powdered crystals of sunlight than like ordinary sugar."

That's why women everywhere are using Swansdown to bake with ... to mix icings.

When you use Swansdown you will never have to boil or fry an icing! Happily convenient ... it mixes like magic with milk and flavor.

Your grocer has Swansdown.

Girl Bride Beaten With Big Hammer

Murderous Attack Made As She Slept; Estranged Husband Arrested

COATESVILLE, Sept. 27.—After a sleeping 16-year-old bride was mutilated by a murderous husband, her estranged husband was arrested as the assailant.

Mrs. Jenny Tober, who has been living with her parents in South Coatesville, may recover physicians at a hospital said, but it is doubtful if she will ever regain the use of one battered eye.

The bedroom intruder was identified as Peter Tober, 22, husband of the girl bride of less than a year, by her sister, Mary Gardonski, with whom Jenny was sleeping.

Police officers, arrested at his parents' home a little later, Tober denied the attack. He was committed to Chester county jail for further hearing, pending development in his wife's condition.

A few hours before the sledge assault, police learned, the parted couple had met on the street and quarreled. Mrs. Tober driving her husband to fury by heatedly taking off her wedding ring and flinging it at him.

It was 4 a. m. when Miss Gardonski awoke as her sister was struck on the head with the heavy hammer, which was left lying on the bedroom floor by the intruder, who had clambered in a window, then disconnected electric lights.

Miss Gardonski declared she recognized the hammer wielder as Tober, when she saw him fleeing from the room.

Mrs. Tober's skull was fractured.

Painter Killed By High Tension Wire

(International News Service)
MT. CARMEL, Pa., Sept. 27.—Touching an electric power line carrying 23,000 volts, John M. Shaeffer, 37, of Mt. Carmel was killed Thursday at the Pine Neck collieries at the Philadelphia Coal and Iron company.

Shaeffer, an employee of Stone and Webster company, was painting a transformer when the accident occurred.

POLITICIANS DODGE

APPEAL TO JUDGE

BABIES IN CONTEST

DODGE CITY, Kan., Sept. 27.—The fair board, which is sponsoring a baby show for the first fair, September 23-27, is in a dilemma.

A board of judges, composed of prominent politicians, refuses to pass judgment on the two sets and more of entries.

These mothers will vote and they'll not forget if we ruled against the little darlings," one said.

An out-of-town judge will carry the load.

The stunning thing about these Thirty-Years-Ago Today departments in the papers is the frequency with which some present-day reactionary is revealed in the act of promoting what was then considered a subversive doctrine of some kind.

Public Is Now Carrying More Stocks Than Any Time Since Turn Of Year

By W. S. COLLINGS
International News Service Financial Editor
NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—An increase of $192,000,000 in public loans in a week of falling prices, and a corresponding increase in the security market's advance activity, in the Wall Street view, that the American public is "carrying" more stocks today than at any time since the turn of the year.

Wholesale dealers of brokers' cars, from the speculative to the investment security market, has frequently been charged against Wall Street in general and a down or more of the big brokerage houses in particular, making it a difficult matter to forecast with any degree of accuracy just what the forthcoming weekly loan statement would show. On general principals a falling market with widespread liquidation generally produces a drop in brokers' loans, whereas a rising market, with the public in up to its neck in reflected in an increase in that item.

Analysis of this week's brokers' loan statement shows on the face of it that the banks have had no part in the $192,000,000 increase, as will be clearly seen from the following tabulation:

Bank loans for own account, Sept. 25, $1,024,000,000; Sept. 18, $1,046,000,000.

Bank loans for out of town, Sept. 25, $1,876,000,000; Sept. 18, $1,897,000,000.

Loans for "others", $3,860,000,000; Sept. 18, $3,636,000,000.

Totals, Sept. 25, $6,760,000,000; Sept. 18, $6,579,000,000.

A glance at these figures shows clearly just what has happened this week. The banks have drawn in from the call loan market 22 million dollars for themselves and 21 millions for their out-of-town correspondents. This makes a total of 43 millions of bank money called in from the speculative loan market. On the other hand, the advances of "others"—principally the investment trusts and corporations with big cash surpluses—have increased their loans 234 million dollars, (figures are approximate) which makes the net borrowing 192 millions higher.

What has happened? The inference is plain that strong holders of stocks, probably the investment trusts, have been selling their stocks and using the proceeds to loan at 8 and 10 per cent in the call loan market. For the present at least they think they can make more money in a 10 per cent call market than by purchasing stocks, even at current prices.

On the other hand, thousands of "sold out" bulls, who sat patiently on the sidelines while their favorite stocks dropped down the price scale, have flocked to the market for the "barbarians" long awaited. They have loaded themselves up with stocks at prices 25 to 50 points below the high of the year. Their purchasing has necessitated an increase of margin borrowing, plainly reflected in the brokers' loan figures.

On general principles loading up of the "lamb" with speculative stocks is considered the opening wedge of the bear campaign against the market and a topping of the price list. At this time, however, the public has not bought at the top and its resources are probably greater than at any former time in financial history. If the public has a firm grip on its stocks and can weather a minor storm, there is little danger of a wide open break in the final quarter of 1929.

Musical Program At Trinity Church On Sunday Evening

Go To Church Sunday To Be Observed With Special Sacred Numbers And Sermon

With the return to Eastern Standard time the evening service in Trinity church at 7:30 o'clock will be resumed next Sunday, Sept. 29. With the idea of making this a rally day for the church and all members and friends of Trinity church are asked to make a particular effort to be present at one of the services. It is the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels, the day on which in thousands of Episcopal churches throughout the world the Fall activities are in full swing. British people will remember how Michaelmas is observed in the parish churches and cathedrals of the mother lands, England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland.

The choir under the direction of Paul B. Patterson will render the following musical program at the 11 a. m. service:

Prelude, Allegretto in B flat—Haydn.

Processional hymn 256, "Songs of praise the angels sang"—C. F. Handel.

Venite—Gibbons.

Gloria Patri—Gibbons.

Te Deum—Stanford in B flat.

Benedictus—Stanford.

Hymn 239, (before sermon) "Stars of the morning"—Henry Smart.

Antiphon, "The Grace of God that bringeth salvation"—Barnby.

Presentation sentence—Van Beethoven.

Recessional hymn 290, "Hark, hark, my soul angelic songs"—Henry Smart.

Postlude, "Sticherie"—Bach.

At the first of the evening services this Fall, 7:30 o'clock, the music selected is:

Prelude, Preambule—Bach.

Processional hymn 461, "Angels voices ever singing"—Sir Arthur Sullivan.

Gloria Patri—Gibbons.

Magnificat—T. Tertius Noble in B flat.

Nunc dimittis—T. Tertius Noble in B flat.

Hymn 15, (sung kneeling) "Through the day Thy love hath spared us"—Sir John Stainer.

Hymn 289 (before sermon) "Stars of the morning"—Henry Smart.

Antiphon, "Songs of praise the angels sang"—Attwood.

Presentation sentence—Van Beethoven.

Postlude, Andante—Tschakowsky.

By vote of the Wardens and Vestry at their last meeting all offerings outside of the duplex offerings will be for the volunteer choir of the church to constitute the beginning of a "choir fund" to be used by the choir through its executive committee for its own activities and future progress.

De Roy Co. Buys Jewelry Store

Pittsburgh Firm Purchases Norman Jewelry Store In This City

Announcement is made that S. H. De Roy & Company, widely known Pittsburgh jewelers of many years, have purchased and taken over the Norman Jewelry Company store on North Mill street, this city.

The store will be remodelled and extensive improvements made in the near future, it being the aim of the management to make it one of the most up-to-date jewelry stores in western Pennsylvania.

Immanuel I. De Roy, one of the members of the firm, who is in the city today, said that the De Roy Company now has six jewelry stores in western Pennsylvania, two in Pittsburgh, one in Homestead, one in McKeesport, one in Johnstown, and the latest, the one in New Castle.

"We will carry the same merchandise in the New Castle store as we do in the Pittsburgh stores, and the policy at the New Castle store will be the same as in the other stores of the company. Nationally advertised merchandise will be carried, and we will sell on credit basis at cash prices," he said.

The De Roy firm is one of the oldest jewelry establishments in Pittsburgh, being founded about 60 years ago by Israel De Roy, who, although 85 years of age, still takes an active interest in the business. He was a visitor at the local store yesterday.

and is much interested in the New Castle store.

When the alterations are made all of the work will be done by New Castle workmen, it is announced.

Irvine Shinn is in charge of the New Castle store as local manager. Members of the firm are Israel De Roy, Sam H. De Roy and Immanuel I. De Roy.

Girl Reserves To Meet On Monday

First Meeting Of Senior High School Girl Reserves At Y. W. C. A.; Groups Formed

The first meeting of the Senior High School Girl Reserves will be held at the Y. W. C. A. building, Monday evening, at 7:30. At this meeting, the members of the club will choose to which interest group they wish to belong. There will be six interest groups, this year. ## Business And Professional Men To Form Organization

Initial Meeting Is Held On Thursday Evening At Valensi Home

Civic Club To Be Outcome Of Initial Gathering—Draw Up By-Laws

For the purpose of getting together on a common ground and exchanging ideas, and also for the purpose of keeping the ethics of their various lines of endeavor on a high plane, a group of business and professional men of this city of Italian descent, have formed an organization of their members.

The details of the organization are yet in the formative stage, the first meeting being held Thursday evening, September 26 in the home of David D. Valensi on Lincoln avenue, with Mr. Valensi acting as chairman of the evening.

Similar to Civic Clubs

The new organization will have much in common with the various civic clubs as the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions. It will be for mutual helpfulness, and a clearing house for the problems that confront the average business and professional man in his daily walk in life.

On Thursday evening, October 2nd, a second meeting will be held and at this meeting officers will be selected, by-laws and rules adopted, and the new organization formally launched upon its civic career.

Quarrel Of Lovers Cosis Man An Eye

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 27.—Elza Jenkins, 27, married, and the father of seven children, is in a hospital suffering from the loss of his left eye and gunshot wounds about the upper part of the body. Police were looking for Mrs. Virgie Phillips, 30 wife of Clayton Phipps a contractor. County authorities expressed a belief that jealousy was the cause of the shooting.

Jenkins was shot 15 miles north of here near the Phipps home and the shooting was said by the police to have resulted from a love affair.

Watchman Bound By Safe Crackers Surprised On Job

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—When a night watchman surprised them while they were "clouting a keister" three safe crackers early today bound him placed him in a closet and escaped from the Hill Top office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company here.

The watchman, Harry Welch, 27, said he entered the building by a rear door shortly before dawn and was confronted by a masked man with a gun. Welch said he saw two other men working on a safe in the next room and they joined their comrades, bound him and placed him in a closet. He was released by employees of the office. Police found that the combination had been knocked from the safe but no loot was obtained.

Four Are Free As Jurors Fail To Reach Verdict

(International News Service) ERIE, Pa., Sept. 27.—Four Erie men were free today as the result of a jury in federal court here being unable to reach a verdict in their trial for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

The men were Morris P. Radow, Emmett J. Bard, Meyer Gold and "Red" Brown, together with Robert Slater who was ordered discharged when the jury failed to agree. They were arrested in a series of raids here in which more than $200,000 worth of liquor manufacturing apparatus was seized.

Pennzoil Plants Being Improved

New Wells Also Being Drilled To Add To Gas Supply

Many improvements to equipment are now under way at the two plants of The Pennzoil Company, which when completed will make motor oil output of this large refinery and marketer considerably greater than it is now.

Additions to the filter department and boiler plant, more Sharples machines and special chilling equipment for making low cold test oils, an enlarged water works and complete new laboratory are being added. A complete new vacuum distillation unit also will soon be placed in operation. Thirty Pennzoil stations are now in service in Lawrence county.

South Penn Oil Co., the largest producers in the Pennsylvania field, are now drilling 500 new wells which are coming in daily and assure an adequate supply of Pennsylvania crude for the future needs of the refining and marketing company—Pennzoil.

DELEGATE IS STRUCK BY CAB

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—C. W. Stillson of Youngstown, O., a delegate to the National Underwriters' convention here is in a critical condition in Emergency hospital suffering from a broken left arm and leg and a possible fractured skull after being hit by a taxicab.

Lewis Heley, driver of the cab, was questioned by the police but was not held.

RECEIVES INJURY Several stitches were required to close a cut on the leg of little Shirley Coats of Edenburg, Pa., which she received at her home recently. The accident happened when Miss Coats fell on the cellar stairs of her home while carrying a glass jar. The jar broke and the leg of Miss Coats was severely injured. She was taken to a local physician.

LOSES FINGERS. (International News Service) CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 27.—The little act of scratching a dynamite cap with a safety pin cost Albert Miller, 16 of Dunbar several fingers and the loss of both thumbs. The cap exploded tearing away his fingers and burning him severely about the legs.

Notice I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife, Mrs. Chas. L. Pile, or anyone other than myself.

Business And Professional Men To Form Organization

Civic Club To Be Outcome Of Initial Gathering—Draw Up By-Laws

For the purpose of getting together on a common ground and exchanging ideas, and also for the purpose of keeping the ethics of their various lines of endeavor on a high plane, a group of business and professional men of this city of Italian descent, have formed an organization of their members.

The details of the organization are yet in the formative stage, the first meeting being held Thursday evening, September 26 in the home of David D. Valensi on Lincoln avenue, with Mr. Valensi acting as chairman of the evening.

Similar to Civic Clubs

Reach New High Levels In American Business

By ROBERT S. THORNEURGH
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—American business started down the home stretch of the year today with a record of achievement rarely equalled in a nine months period.

Virtually every indicator by which the government measures business volume and prosperity, available at the treasury and commerce departments today, told of new high levels in commerce and industry.

Two new factors in the business picture were contained in the official summary.

During the first seven months of the year there was an increase of 197 per cent in the volume of air mail, 2,774,271 pounds having been carried.

In the same period commercial and industrial interests spent $9,974,000 for advertisements radio-broadcast. That was an increase of 94 per cent.

Newspaper and magazine advertising likewise continued on the upgrade. Advertisers spent $18,312,000 for magazine space in the first seven months, a gain of 3.6 per cent, while in newspapers were carried 706,510,000 lines of advertising for an increase of 4.5 per cent.

National newspaper advertising showed a 19 per cent gain with a total of 343,747,000 lines. Advertisements of radio apparatus gained 133 per cent, heading the list. Food and beverage advertising gained 37 per cent.

HEAR TESTIMONY IN CITY COUNCIL FROM PLUMBERS

Has Mr. Stevenson raised the question? said "No, not on new work."

Andrews was cross-examined and said he had never given notice to inspector that work was ready for final inspection.

"You never asked for a final test?" he said he had never heard of it (air of peppermint test) being made and said he couldn't name any job where he had been.

Master Plumber Called

James Bradford, master plumber was called.

The counsel for Mr. Stevenson said he was willing to grant that a final "air of peppermint" test had never been made.

Bradford informed the court that it had been, but not during Mr. Stevenson's term.

He volunteered the information that it had been made at the Alken school about 1917.

Bradford said a Mr. Wyrie and he had put the test on.

Counsel for the plaintiffs asked: "How about repair work?"

Bradford admitted he asked for an inspection in several cases and Mr. Stevenson had honored the request.

"How about fees?"

Bradford said Stevenson left this to plumber and it was paid each month.

"In every case where you asked Mr. Stevenson to make the inspections, Mr. Stevenson made them?" asked the inspector's counsel.

"Yes," said the witness.

Elison Testifies

John R. Elison, master plumber, was next called.

He told the court that in his experience with Mr. Stevenson that "any repair work I have done and paid fees for, Mr. Stevenson had made the inspections."

Elison was asked: "What about the fees for jobs he did not inspect?"

"I do not recall any fees for inspections he did not make," Elison answered.

On cross-examination he was asked: "He would not know of work unless reported to him?"

"No."

He explained that he made out a and financial advertising 17 per cent. Mail order and chain store business expanded. Mail order house sales for seven months were $388,845,000, or 30 per cent greater than in the same period of the year before. While the chain stores show increases of from two to forty per cent. Sales of the ten cent store chains amounted to $293,859,000, a gain of over 8 per cent.

Another excellent indicator was the output of electric power given as 47,392,000,000 kilowatt hours in the first six months. Big increases in the volume of power consumed were reported from all important industries except chemical, lumber, paper and automobiles. Gas and electric companies had gross earnings of $1,540,000,000, a four per cent gain. The net earnings, however, were 18 per cent higher. Electric railways earnings dropped one per cent to $5,395,000,000.

Interest and dividend payments were given as $4,128,901,000 for seven months, while insurance written amounted to $7,534,386,000. These were gains of thirteen and 6 1/2 per cent, respectively. Employment and wages increased, while applications for jobs at employment agencies declined except in some western states.

Because of the exceptional conditions in the money market foreign loans slumped 52 per cent in seven months, amounting to but $516,432,000. These loans probably will be the lowest since the war.

Business failures declined nearly six per cent in the first seven months.

regular form and paid the fees. He said he did not make any special report.

"Are you one of the petitioners?" he was asked by the defendant's attorney.

"No."

"Your name appears on the petition?" he was asked.

Elison explained that the petition he signed was not the one presented to council and he said he had not authorized anyone to use his name.

Counsel for the plaintiffs took up the question and presented Exhibit 1. Elison said he recognized his signature. It was a petition dated July 5, 1928 of Master plumbers and the local union asking that an attorney be secured to remove the present inspector and it said the expenses were to be borne equally.

Elison admitted signing the petition.

"Why did you sign this agreement?" he was asked by the attorney for the master plumbers and local 39.

"My interpretation was that the Journeymen and Masters had evidence against him and he had not been doing as he should. The evidence was to be brought before the association but I did not see the accusations and petition presented to council," he answered.

"What did you know regarding these violations?"

"Only what I heard," he replied.

Counsel for petitioners brought out that Elison had done work on the Neisner store. He admitted that Stevenson had passed certain work alleged to have been installed contrary to the code. He would not admit that it was wrong to install it as it had been installed.

Warned By Mayor

It referred to a soda fountain, sink and drain and a wash for silverware and glasses.

The plumbers who had laid off work to attend the hearing laughed and at the suggestion of the counsel for Stevenson the mayor warned them that no remarks or laughing would be tolerated.

On cross-examination Elison said he had never seen the petition before and knew of no violations permitted or directed by Stevenson and said that the work he had installed at the Neisner store "would not be a violation according to my knowledge."

He admitted he had installed a horizontal line and sanitary T's.

"Is it not a fact that the state code provides that T's can only be made on perpendicular or vertical work? Were they passed upon?" Elison was asked.

"Yes."

Elison maintained that the manner in which he had done the work would be open for discussion.

Mr. Whitla was recalled by counsel for Stevenson.

"State if you came into council to direct council to make a final air of peppermint test?"

"No," Whitla answered.

Mr. Andrews was asked a similar question and answered "No" because our foreman looks after this.

John Woods, master plumber, was next called.

"State if Stevenson made inspections for repair work."

"Yes," he replied to the plaintiff's attorney.

Woods said he had to pay Stevenson only when inspections were made.

"State if you had difficulties about installation of a wet vent line."

"I had on one job," he replied. It was in Audley street. He refused to pass it, although it was done at The Castleton. I was told," said Woods. He said he had to take his job out.

"State if you had difficulties about some work at the Shenandoe Tin Mill, by your shop and the Stevenson shop?"

Mr. Woods said he had some work there and Mr. Stevenson passed it.

He said he had been called and given the plans. He was not quite sure of the fees.

Got Job

Woods said he visited Stevenson and got the figures. He got the job. Coming from the mill he said he saw Harold Stevenson, became interested and watched where he was going. He went to the mill.

"I thought I had competition," Woods said.

Harold Stevenson was identified as a son of Ed Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson's attorney took over the witness for cross examination.

"You did not have any competition?"

"Only three bidders, Stevenson's (Harold) bid was put in late, they told me later," Woods replied.

He explained that his firm had the job before he had seen Harold Stevenson.

Woods said he did not know if Stevenson had been called by the tin mill or not.

Later he amended his information to say he "knew he was not called."

Asked how he knew this Woods replied that he had this information only on hearsay.

"Did you ever see the petition asking for his removal before it was presented to council?"

"Only the one signed in the union meeting," Woods replied. He admitted he had not signed the one sent to council.

Gives Explanatory Testimony

Woods then volunteered to explain that "I roughed a house on Elizabeth street three years ago. He (Ed Stevenson) was called for the inspection. Woods did not have a clean-out in it. He said the measurement would be 32 inches. Stevenson made him put in a clean-out 'Y' because he would not inspect it."

"Later I was on a job at Fairfield and Mercer," he volunteered. "It was necessary to borrow a pipe from another job. I looked and saw a sink waste about seven feet and not a clean-out in it. I wondered why I had to put one in for 32 inches and the seven foot job had none." Woods said that Stevenson's inspection ticket was on it. Woods claimed that Stevenson had refused to pass his job but had this one.

"Do you know who was right?" defendant's attorney asked.

Woods said that any job over five feet needs one.

Edward Masters, a master plumber, was called.

"What has been your experience with Mr. Stevenson on repair work?" he was asked.

He said some was inspected, some was not. He said Stevenson, however, was always willing to inspect whenever I reported they were paid.

"I reported a few jobs during the term of Mayor Dunlap. I reported some to Stevenson. He ordered the work replaced by Master plumbers," said Masters.

Work had been put in by unskilled persons instead of plumbers. Masters thought the former mayor should have gone farther. He admitted that Stevenson had taken it up with Mayor Dunlap.

"Did you have any differences with the inspector?"

Masters told of a job at the Johnson Bronze where they were three bidders, one Clark, $1700, Masters, $1550 and the Stevenson company (Harold), $950.

He admitted he knew nothing of Ed Stevenson having any connection with the Johnson Bronze job.

Attorneys brought out this probably to show a connection between the inspector and his son's firm and was cross-examined by the defendant's attorney to show there was none.

Alford Testifies

Ira Alford, master plumber, was next called.

He said he had had no experience to speak of with the inspector. He said he had turned in fees for work he had repaired. He said: "I don't know if inspections were made, only on jobs of a size."

"What complaint, as a master plumber, have you against Mr. Stevenson?" asked counsel for the plaintiffs.

"None personally," Alford replied. He admitted everything to him was heresy.

However, he said that relative to the Stevenson company, he did not believe it right for Ed Stevenson to hold the job.

On cross examination:

"Do you know anything against him?"

"No."

"You do not know of his using his connection against you or anyone else?"

"No."

"You do not know he has not been connected with the firm for a considerable time?"

"I understand," he replied.

At this point the attorneys got into a controversy.

Attorneys for the plumbers and inspector became embroiled in an argument over the petition presented to council. Stevenson's attorney maintained that some men who had their names on it had not actually seen or signed it, according to their testimony.

Council for the plaintiffs maintained the petition was but a usual court procedure and that all of the charges gathered collectively had been incorporated and that being backed by affidavits it was proper to present it.

Councilman Tyler said council could use their own discretion in posing over the testimony and the attorney for Mr. Stevenson said he would waive the point so the hearing could proceed.

Bryan Testifies

Lawrence Bryan, secretary-treasurer of the union, No. 39, was next called.

"Did you have occasion to consider repeated violations of the code at George Washington Junior high?" he was asked by the plaintiff's attorney.

He produced a minute book of a meeting, read that the plumbing had been discussed, the inspector be advised and of the work being replaced. He also read a report made by Haines, Griffith and himself of Jameson hospital work.

Bryan said he went to the hospital and said in answer to a question that he saw a number of violations. He referred to the T's Y's and elbows. He told of his personal experience by stating: "My personal experience is that if you put a T in on a horizontal line it causes stoppage." He then described other alleged violations. He said the work was replaced.

Bryan then went into the alleged violations at George Washington Junior high and claims they were called to Mr. Stevenson's attention. Nothing was done excepting that traps were removed. He said Stevenson's stickers had been placed.

On cross-examination he was asked:

"You say this work was changed after you were there?"

"Garfield Ligo told me he had ordered the change."

He said he did not know personally anything about Stevenson having ordered the change.

Bryan said that relative to the drinking fountains the code required a distinction concerning ventilation and said each trap should be vented.

"These changes were made?"

"Yes," replied Bryan.

The hearing was adjourned for noon and is being completed this afternoon.

Hempill Not Guilty Verdict Of Jury

In the case of the commonwealth against William Hempill, who was charged with embezzlement, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. It was claimed by the Hudson company, by whom Hempill was employed, that he had failed to report certain collections. This was denied by Hempill. The jury placed the costs on the prosecutor, Abe Freed.

Scientist Finds Lost Race Once Lived On Coast

(The Associated Press Staff)
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27.—Comparing in skull structure with the Australian neandertals a race of human beings once lived and disappeared in Southern California. Malcolm Rogers, archeologist for the Smithsonian Institution reported here after preliminary excavations at Rancho Santa Fe.

The predecessors of even the ancestral Indian tribes lived 10,000 years ago geological indications proved according to Rogers.

In Two Classes.

A difference in the construction of artifacts he said, disclosed that the dwellers fell into two classes, separated from one another by considerable time. He has tentatively named the groups the "scraper-makers" and the "proto-scraper makers" from utensils found in their ancient camping places.

An interesting sidelight was thrown on Southern California weather by the explorations. Drainage lines implied a much heavier rainfall here in the days of the scraper-makers. Savage and uncultured, the ancients still had wit enough to build their rough huts on high ground away from floods.

The primitive people lacked even the weapons to kill deer although deer abounded. They lived mostly on clams and fish with possibly a bitter flour pounded from the pit of shrubs.

To Check Findings.

Dr. Rogers announced he would check his findings with geologists. He also will study the geological record of emergencies and subsidings of the coast line over long periods.

Such a rising movement at this time is believed responsible for the caving off of a 3-acre section of Point Firman near here.

Some of the scraper-maker villages are now below sea-level Rogers has found.

Alien Registry Urged To Combat Growth Of Crime

Chicago Immigration Chief Says Checkup Needed For Foreigners

HONEST IMMIGRANTS
WOULD NOT SUFFER

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Government officials in Chicago say the recognition of the inadequacy in immigration regulations and are looking toward the drawing tighter of restrictions on the foreign born who come here with no intent of assimilation except with the lawless class.

Under the present policy of losing track immediately of the streams of foreign born who pour through Ellis Island and other entry ports the government is virtually helpless to combat the alien who turns his mind to crime and away from a life of conductive to the making of a useful American citizen it is pointed out. As a remedy a registration system similar to that imposed upon strangers in every European country has been recommended by S. D. Smith chief of the Chicago office of the Federal Immigration service.

"An honest man coming to our country from another and could have no prejudices against being properly registered with authorities here and there as he moved about the country. Only he alien crook could be expected to protest," declared Mr. Smith.

"When an American reaches London or Paris or Berlin of Hamburg about the first thing he is required to do is to supply the authorities of those cities with a complete account of himself," continued Mr. Smith. "And it is done so simply as to inconvenience no visitor abroad. The hotel clerks or lodging house keepers wherever the American may stop down the information required and these memoranda are turned over to the police. That system could be adopted and made to work out as effectively as it does in Europe."

"There are penalties for the failure of a hotel to obtain and forward promptly the data required by law from their guests from a foreign country and penalties also for the man from abroad who fails to supply correctly this data."

Mr. Smith pointed out that what might be termed the beginning in the right direction was put into effect by the United States authorities in 1928 with a rule requiring that every immigrant be given an identification card at the port of entry. The primary idea in this was to protect the alien he said.

Petrified Forest Is Discovered In Montana Valley

Several acres of petrified trees, some of them 10 feet in diameter and over 100 feet long, have been discovered on Indian Coulee, near Savage, Mont., according to a report made public by the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of Interior.

A vein of coal discovered in a nearby hill supports the theory that the trees belonged to the coal-forest forests of that geological age, the report said.

The department's summary, which appears in the current issue of its monthly New Reclamation Era, follows in full text: "The city of Los Angeles has set a price of $5,421,521 for peace in the Owens River valley, from which it derives its water supply."

Townspeople and ranchers of the district have countered with a claim of $8,000,000, approximately $1,000 for each of the almost eight thousand persons there, if the money were to be equally divided.

Conferees are going on almost daily between Los Angeles city officials and representatives of the valley residents.

For twenty-four years Los Angeles and Owens river valley have been at war. On one side a great city has fought doggedly to enforce its legal right to bring needed water to its constantly increasing population. On the opposite side, and battling with primitive vigor for what they considered their rightful heritage were ill-fated of the once desert soil, and the merchants and bankers of the valley.

The long-drawn feud has been marked with gun play, dynamiting, demonstrations by night riders, legal and criminal trials, bankruptcy, and finally the sentencing to San Quentin prison of two bankers, once foremost business men, once, and long considered overlords of the district.

Buy Five Towns
If Los Angeles is successful in buying the towns of Dig Pine, Lone Pine, Bishop, Independence and Laws, together with all the ranches it does not already own in the valley, the city will lease the farms and farm tracts as a mining company sublets ground space to workers and storekeepers.

The great question confronting the city will be that of keeping the ranchers where they are. If they choose to move away and the farms are not worked they will revert to arid desert waste, as they were before they were homesteaded.

the location of a vein of coal in an adjoining hill, which appears to be on the same earth strata.

The trees have fallen in the same direction, leading to the belief that they were uprooted by a violent southeast wind. Over an area 30 miles wide and 100 miles long in eastern Montana a piece of petrified wood can be found, but this is the first forest of petrified trees lying in place as they had fallen. The silicate deposits which turned the trees to stone has not crystallized, and none of the wood rings of the trees is visible.

Sees Curves, But They're Straight

Psychology Experimenter Studies
Space By Prism
Glasses

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 27.—How would you like to reach for a glass of water and meet only empty space, to think straight doors were curved, or see rainbows around the heads of all your friends?

This is what happened to Miss Janet Goldschmidt of New York when she put on prism glasses in her investigation of the habit of space perception in connection with her work in psychology at Smith college.

Space perception is defined as the ability to perceive which things are far away and which nearby. Psychologists say that this ability must be acquired, one that babies do not possess.

In infancy the world seems only a confusing blur of colors and lines. Gradually however by reaching for things and in other ways each person learns to see the world in three dimensions and thus forms the habit of space perception.

Miss Goldschmidt undertook to investigate this habit further. For three days she wore a pair of prism glasses that moved everything she saw to the left. Straight lines became curved and everywhere light was bent or refracted as it passed through the prisms into rainbow bands of color.

To this new situation Miss Goldschmidt's old habits of space perception were poorly adapted. She reached for a pencil and felt only her desk; she walked towards a door and found only a wall. Soon however she began to form new habits and could reach for things with some hope of success. To learn to walk downstairs took the longest of all but in three days she was adjusted to the new world.

One of the most surprising of Miss Goldschmidt's results came when she touched a straight surface which (because of the glasses) looked curved. It felt curved as well. This Miss Goldschmidt concluded seemed to prove the primacy of sight over kinesthetics or touch a point which long has been debated among scientists.

End Feud Over Water Supplies For Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27.—The end of an epic feud of the west was in sight today.

The city of Los Angeles has set a price of $5,421,521 for peace in the Owens River valley, from which it derives its water supply.

Townspeople and ranchers of the district have countered with a claim of $8,000,000, approximately $1,000 for each of the almost eight thousand persons there, if the money were to be equally divided.

Over Twenty Millions Paid To Lawrence Co. Workers During Year

By ARTHUR C. WIMER, Special News Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27.—From the viewpoint of the value of manufactured products, Lawrence county ranks 18th of Pennsylvania's 67 counties, according to the figures of the census of manufacturers just made public by the department of commerce. The year covered by the census was 1927.

During the year covered by the survey, Lawrence county manufacturing establishments turned out products valued at $98,519,007, according to the commerce department report. Seventeen other counties of the state led Lawrence in the value of output, including Beaver with an output of manufactures worth $231,554,363, and Mercer with manufactured products valued at $109,052,474.

Butler county, however, trailed Lawrence, reporting manufactures worth only $49,712,279, less than one-half the value of the Lawrence county output.

During the year, 118 manufacturing establishments were located in Lawrence county, employing an average of 11,551 wage earners, paying these workers wages totaling $20,136,723 for the year, using materials costing $60,471,637 during the year and producing manufactures worth $98,519,007.

The value of the Lawrence county manufactured products for the year represented approximately one sixty-seventh of the value of the manufactured output of Pennsylvania as a whole, an analysis of the census figures reveals.

During the year, a total of 17,314 manufacturing establishments was located in the state, employing an average of 987,414 wage earners, paying these workers total wages of $1,315,593,319 for the year, using materials costing $3,733,061,778 during the year and turning out products in the 12-month period worth $5,715,569,455.

State Divorces Show Some Increase Over Marriages; Not In County However

By ARTHUR C. WIMER, Special News Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27.—The divorce lawyer scored a few points on Dan Cupid in Pennsylvania last year, it would appear from a report made public by the commerce department today which reveals that while the number of marriages in that state last year fell off 4.9 per cent as compared with 1927, divorces decreased only 1.6 per cent in number.

Marriages in Pennsylvania last year numbered 67,640 as against 71,130 in 1927, a decline of 3,490 or 4.9 per cent, according to the commerce department report.

The estimated population of the state on July 1, 1928, was 9,854,000, and on July 1, 1927 was 9,730,000. On the basis of these estimates, the number of marriages per 1,000 population was only 6.9 in 1928 as against 7.3 in 1927; and the number of divorces per 1,000 residents was 0.81 in 1928, as compared with 0.83 in 1927, a slight decrease being apparent in the divorce rate than in the marriage rate.

Lawrence county ranked 19th of Pennsylvania's 67 counties in the number of marriages performed in 1928 and 22nd in the number of divorces granted, according to the commerce department survey.

During the year, 998 marriages were performed and 87 divorces were granted in Lawrence county, as against 880 marriages and 93 divorces recorded in the county in 1927.

One marriage was annulled in the county in 1928 but none in 1927, the survey reveals.

Local interest in Mr. Marquis is due to the fact that he is a native of Lawrence county, having been born in Plunkett. He is a cousin of William Marquis of Neshaunock avenue.

His right arm was broken for the second time today. This revealed a long record of other breaks—six to his left arm, left foot broken twice, right ankle fractured once, and broken ribs on eleven occasions.

Women smokers have materially boosted the sale of cigarettes during the past year.

Former Pulaski Man In Pittsburgh Finals

Harry Marquis of 1113 Woods Run, avenue, North Side, Pittsburgh, is one of the five horseshoe tossers who will meet in the finals of the horseshoe pitching tournament for the western Pennsylvania championship.

He won the section one title in competition with eight other group winners last Saturday. The finals will be held next Saturday.

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Being Good Parent Not Easy When You Have Bright Child

It is difficult to be a good parent or a good teacher of a bright child. Mother Nature has endowed some children with a very high ability to learn. Such children frequently are handicapped upon the playground. In the home and in the school by lack of mental stimulation. We parents must all have a tendency to assume that nearly every child has less capacity to learn and to think than he really has. We tend to act, for instance, toward the child of ten as if he were but six, and toward the child of six as if he were merely three. We go thinking for our children, talking for them doing for them long past the time when they can think and speak and do for themselves. The brighter the child is the wider is the difference between his real ability and the ability that we assume. His teacher also is inclined to dull his mind by making weak appeal.

Nevertheless if the school psychologist, the teacher or the neighbor tells us we have a bright child our chest swells up with pride. We believe in the power of heredity; we are his parents. Accordingly we find all sorts of subtle ways to announce to our friends that we have a smart child. The child often hears us break the glad news. According to our estimate our social stock goes up. We welcome all suggestions of the child's superior ability and even drag out our acquaintances the sweet reminder that our child is very bright.

About the most assinine parent is the parent who is forever telling people that she is the parent of a rapid learner. Most of her efforts are expended on such vanity; very little on the child's development.

How hard it is for the parent of a bright child to cultivate enough character and sportsmanship to be likeable among other parents. How hard also it is for the child to be likeable among other children. Nevertheless, some bright children are, in spite of their parents, much esteemed by their playmates.

The bright child excels in wit and cunning, and in readiness to acquire skills. He may, however, find his playmates so slow to learn that he seeks mental stimulation in intellectual avenues. Accordingly he may prefer books to the rough and tumble of the playground, withdrawing from other children to read and to create alone. One of the biggest problems parents of the bright child have is to stimulate group play and social interest in him. All else equal, the brighter the child the more he needs to mingle freely with other children. But what usually happens is that the brighter the child, the less his normal urge for companionship since he has so many rich resources in himself.

He finds other children relatively slow in catching on. Aware of his intellectual superiority, he expects them to defer to him in all other matters. He aspires to leadership, but often lacks the qualities which constant intermingling can give him. The only reason that some bright children are not popular among their comrades is because they have not had social opportunities. They ought to be the normal leaders in their social group. They will be taken from early childhood those most able mentally shall have ample opportunities to mingle freely and to play enough with other children of their age and when their parents learn not to make snobs of them.

The school has a big problem with the bright child. If he does the regular assignments, advancing with his class, he may find the work so dull that he soon acquires habits of listlessness and daydreaming. Some very bright children even fall in school. If he skips a grade or two he may find himself a more infant among much older children who by their attitude toward him make him feel still more infantile than he is. An occasional school is providing richer courses for such children segregating them into special classes. This scheme is full of promise.

HELPED MOTHER AND DAUGHTER BACK TO HEALTH

Celebrated New Medicine, Ten Herbs, Did Them "World Of Good"

Thousands of men and women of all ages and stations in life, including many of this city and vicinity, have publicly recommended the new medicine, Ten Herbs, for stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders, rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. With such convincing proof of the exceptional merit of this compound there is little wonder that it is a tremendous success throughout this entire section. Learn more about Ten Herbs by calling at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington St., this city, where this famous medicine with the ten wonderful natural ingredients is being introduced.

"I am still very much enthused over Ten Herbs because of the world of good it did my daughter, Catherine, 18 years old, and me sometime ago," was the recent statement of Mrs. Mary Skiles, 135 Arnold Street, Griffith Heights, Pittsburgh, Pa. "I was troubled with severe indigestion, Sourness and heartburn bothered me, and at times I had a terrible bloated feeling. Dizziness, bilious spells and headaches came on me, and I was so nervous I could not sleep well. Sometimes I could not bend over because of the terrible pains in my back. I had to keep taking physics on account of constipation.

"After reading in the papers how Ten Herbs was helping many local people, I started using your medicine, and the results were surprising. My appetite improved, and I was given remarkable relief from indigestion, so that I could eat almost anything without having distress. Sourness, bloating and heartburn disappeared. I no longer had bilious attacks, headaches, dizzy spells, or blurring of the eyes. Constipation was corrected, and the terrible pains left my back. Your medicine also relieved my daughter of indigestion and pains around her heart, and proved a good tonic for her. We are both glad to recommend Ten Herbs to the public."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington St., this city, and is sold at all drug and medicine stores throughout this entire section.

Ohio Man Kills Business Rival, Commits Suicide

Uhrichville, Ohio, Man Goes On Rampage Slays One, Wounds Three, Kills Self

(International News Service) UHRICHVILLE, O., Sept. 27.—Pearl Waller, 40, shot and killed his 21-year-old nephew, wounded three other relatives, one probably fatally, and then committed suicide here Thursday afternoon.

Waller was a shoe cobbler by trade and he had taught his nephew Doyle Hooker his business.

The youth left the store of his uncle and started an establishment of his own. That is believed to have been the motive for the shooting.

After fatally wounding Hooker at the latter's store, Waller went to the home of Mrs. Frank Hooker, the man's mother. He shot her in the abdomen and she has little chance to live.

Ulysses S. Grant, Jr. Is Called By Death

Son Of Former President And Civil War Chief Dies In His Sleep In California

(International News Service) LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 27.—Ulysses S. Grant, Jr., son of former President U. S. Grant, died in his sleep early Thursday at Sandberg's, a mountain resort near Bakersfield. Grant was enroute to his home at San Diego and had stopped over night at the resort.

THIEF LOOTS COURTHOUSE CENTERVILLE, Sept. 27.—One Queen Anne's county thief at least has no fear of the courthouse. George W. Seward, custodian of the building, was the victim. The thief pilfered a valuable silver watch and chain from his coat pocket. Seward left his coat hanging in the corridor while working about the building, and returning found the timepiece missing.

Still, a world champion is just a man who excels at some stunt that better men won't waste their time on.

FORMER SUFFERER 80, TELLS ABOUT KONJOLA'S POWERS

"It Was The Medicine I Should Have Had In The First Place"—Freed Of Two Ailments.

MR. JOHN KERO

"Indigestion and rheumatism had been the bane of my life for years," said Mr. John Kero, 634, Second Street, Edinburg, Pa. "After each meal, even though I consisted of the lightest foods, I bloated with gas and became short of breath. The rheumatism settled in my arms, hands and joints. They became swollen and so sore that I could hardly use them."

"A friend recommended Konjola to me and insisted that I take it a change. Three bottles of this new medicine restored my indigestion and improved my appetite. The rheumatic pains have vanished and I can get around and do my work without suffering in the least. I welcome this opportunity to pass along the good word about Konjola. It proved itself the master medicine."

Konjola is sold in New Castle, Pa., at Love & McGowan drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

FROSH WILL DO "STUNTS"

Saturday Morning Frolic For Amusement Of Upper Classmen

Members of the freshman class at Westminster College will cavort to the amusement of upper classmen Saturday morning in the annual stunt day program to be given on the athletic field. Stunt day, as started two years ago, takes the place of the old class rushes and class fights.

The upper class committee has appointed sophomore supervisors of various groups of freshmen who are to put on acts, skits, pantomimes and tableaux of a humorous nature. It is understood that one group plans to portray the history of the Sharpsville railroad. Another group of yearlings plan to present some scenes from Corey Ford's book, "Salt Water Taffy."

The usual pantomimes on college traditions, faculty members and college organizations will be included in the acts. One or two beauty contests among the first-year men, a mock marriage and a possible football game are also on the program.

EDENBURG NEWS

RALLY DAY A special program is being prepared and cards are being sent out, and every member canvass is being made by special committees for Rally Day, which will be held the second Sunday in October at the Christian church. This will be one of the biggest days on the church calendar.

HOMECOMING A cordial invitation has been extended to the members of the Christian church to attend homecoming day at the Lovellville Christian church on Sunday, Sept. 29.

EDENBURG PERSONALS Walter Biddle was a New Castle visitor Wednesday. Angelo Sorti of New Castle spent Wednesday with his mother, Mrs. Salvatore Sorti. Mrs. Patrick Cannon, Mrs. Gene Sawyer, Mrs. Joseph Duffy and Mrs. Jack Foley of Youngstown spent Wednesday with the latter's aunt, Mrs. Irvin Hoffmeister. Willis McBride of Hillsville and Miss Bessie Hoffmeister spent the evening recently with Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gwin at New Castle. W. Johnson of New Castle was a business caller in town Tuesday. Contracts awarded in 1929 for automobile sales rooms, service stations, public garages and vehicle manufacturing plants, amounted to nearly $200,000,000.

Naval Officers Will Be Called

Members Of Geneva Conference To Be Summoned By Senate

CHARGE OFFICERS "IN" WITH SHEARER

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Naval officers who were members of the American delegation to the ill-starred Geneva disarmament conference will be called to answer charges that they connived with William B. Shearer, the agent of American shipbuilding firms, to "wreck the conference" when the Senate naval committee resumes its investigation of Shearer's activities next week.

Several officers were named by Drew Pearson, a newspaper reporter, as being on intimate terms with Shearer at Geneva. They included Rear Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, now attached to the navy general staff; Rear Admiral Frank Schofield, now commanding a battleship division of the fleet; and Commander Harold C. Train, also attached to the general staff, and who has been one of the experts who assisted in arriving at the recently negotiated British-American cruiser agreement.

Pending their appearance before the committee, the officers named declined to comment today on Pearson's testimony.

"I have nothing to say at this time," said Admiral Reeves today.

Pearson was a loquacious witness before the committee. After establishing that he attended the Geneva conference as a reporter, he testified that Shearer "lavishly entertained" at Geneva, that he was "on intimate terms" with the naval members of the American delegation, and that he (Pearson) once heard Admiral Reeves state that he wished the conference would fail.

Admiral Reeves and Shearer were particularly intimate, according to Pearson's testimony.

"They were together night after night," he said.

As for the other naval officers, Pearson said he believed they were "sympathetic" with Shearer and his activities at Geneva, with the possible exception of Rear Admiral Hilary Jones, the chief of the American naval delegation. Pearson said the slogan of the American naval officers apparently was "no repetition of the Washington conference."

Senator Robinson (D) of Arkansas brought out that many people believe the United States got the worst of the Washington conference, and asked Pearson if the attitude of the naval officers might not have been interpreted as standing out for naval parity with Great Britain. Pearson said it was apparent "after a week or so at Geneva that party would not be achieved."

Shearer himself will be among the witnesses called next week.

LOST GIRL TURNS AGAINST HOME

MARIE VAIL

Marie Vail, long lost child, has made her choice between life as a stenographer in New York and existence as an heiress in a small town—Edenton, N. C. She has chosen the Big City. She didn't know her father existed until a few weeks ago. As a child she was deserted by her mother. Her father, a native of Syria, was in his homeland when the child was born in Brooklyn. The girl disappeared. Some months ago the father was called to Newark, N. J., to attend the funeral of a cousin. The priest was the same one who married him to his first wife. Marie was found, took a look at Edenton, and decided. Her father is wealthy. Above, Edenton is compared with New York.

False Testimony Charges Made

Attorneys Claim False Testimony In Case Of Accused Officers

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—Denouncing witnesses who appeared for the commonwealth in the trial of the three former coal and iron police of the Pittsburgh Coal Company for the murder of a miner, John Borkowski, as having testified falsely, defense attorneys Edward G. Coll opened the closing arguments in the case today.

Coll spoke in behalf of Harold P. Watts and Frank Slapakis, who with Walter J. Lyster, are charged with beating Borkowski to death. He was following defense attorney Pritchard, who spoke in behalf of Lyster.

"There is always somebody who wants to be a hero," declared Coll vigorously as he assailed the testimony of John Higgins, star witness for the prosecution. "Higgins is a bootlegger by his own confession," he continued, as he analyzed the witness' testimony in which he described the attack on Borkowski at the barracks of the coal company at Imperial, Pa.

Oak Street Association Inaugurates Fall Meetings Thursday

Annual election of officers marked the opening meeting for the fall of the Oak Street Parent-Teachers' association held in the school library on Thursday afternoon. As a result of the balloting, Mrs. Ralph Montgomery was chosen to serve as president for the ensuing year.

Mrs. F. O. Alexander, retiring president, was in charge of the day's program, which was featured by a series of songs sung by pupils of the lower grades. There were 70 members of the chapter in attendance.

Following the "Whoop Song" presented by grade 3A, "Do You Know," "Autumn Lullaby" and "September" by grade 4A, Mrs. Alexander instructed the committees as to their duties. The message from the national P. T. A. president was read by Miss Helen Hinkson.

Other officers elected for the ensuing term besides Mrs. Montgomery were as follows: First vice president, Mrs. P. O. Alexander; second vice president, Mrs. Leonard Campbell; third vice president, Mrs. Carl Gilmore; secretary, Mrs. James Bradford; and treasurer, Mrs. Leonard Cramer.

Pinchot Writes Capitol Folks Of Long Cruise

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania is finding time to write letters to his friends in the capital from the far-away islands in the Pacific, where he is cruising on the Cuddysark, a three-masted top-sail schooner.

In a letter to Senator George Norris of Nebraska, a personal and political friend, Mr. Pinchot tells enthusiastically of wild life on the Galapagos islands, situated about 700 miles west of Ecuador.

"I suppose the Galapagos Islands," writes the former secretary, "are as much like the Garden of Eden as any place remaining on the face of the earth—at least so far as the tameness of wild things is concerned."

Romantic Islands.
"If there is any place like them, I don't know where it is, and I think it would be a great thing for the people of the whole world, who will eventually be able to come to remote places of the earth easily, cheaply, and in great numbers, if a part as least of this archipelago, say three or four islands, could be set aside, either under the control of the United States, or, if Ecuador would not consent to that, then under the control of the League of Nations, as a perpetual wild life refuge and be protected as such."

"I hardly dare to tell how tame wild creatures are on the Galapagos. There is not one of us, I think, who has not had wild birds perching on some part of his person. Mrs. Pinchot had a hawk light on her head. I succeeded in coaxing a four-toed iguana actually into my lap by feeding him grasshoppers out of my fingers, and the second mate and I sat down one day on either side of a sea lion so close that he nuzzled the shoulder of each one of us in succession by merely turning his head. We sat there for perhaps ten minutes. "To put it in a word, wild things which elsewhere run away from man, the killer, just as soon as he heaves in sight here run toward him. They regard him as news, to be looked over and learned about, and they show not the slightest fear, even when given good reasons.

Feed Mocking Birds.
"Take this example. One day when a lot of mocking birds were eating oranges and sandviches out of our hands we noticed one of them whose beak through accident had been twisted so that the upper and lower halves crossed each other instead of meeting. The bird had great difficulty in eating anything, so Dr. Mathewson decided to operate.

"I caught the bird without the slightest difficulty with a noose of string and held him while the doctor trimmed his beak into proper shape. When I let him go he flew off six or eight feet, stopped and rubbed his bill, which was bleeding slightly. About that time I had to start for the coast and so lost sight of him, but I haven't the slightest doubt that I would have been able to catch him again with the same noose had I wanted him."

Big Marble Ledges Found In Colorado

(International News Service)
SALIDA, Colo., Sept. 27.—Marble deposits that may exceed in quantity, quality and variety the combined output of the rest of the world were discovered recently and are being developed near here.

Ledges that appear to be miles in extent and assuring millions of tons of marble of every conceivable color and pattern have been traced out and sampled.

The new find has created more than a wild sensation among building interests and eastern experts assert that development of the quarries may make America entirely independent of foreign marble markets.

All decorative marble heretofore used in the United States has been imported from France, Italy, Belgium and Mexico.

Many carloads of the product already have been shipped to Chicago and other eastern cities and the same product was used in the construction of the newly-completed 16-story telephone building in Denver.

Among the deposits near here a marble similar to the famous black marble of Italy is to be found in large quantities and in a wide variation of color.

WHERE TRADING'S GOOD

For the prosperity of our people the United States government will do well to encourage in every possible way the building up of foreign markets and foreign trade. Julian B. Foster, representing the U. S. department of commerce, returning from New Zealand, says that is the richest country in the world. The people down there are willing to use our goods. Surely our quality, our methods, our service is as good as those of the rest of the trading world. There are too many American manufacturers without the vision of the possibilities of foreign trade.

It is figured out by statisticians of a life insurance company that the average one of us, doing this, that, and the other thing, has an expectancy of longer life than the average physician. Somebody says the average doctor does not profit greatly by his superior knowledge of the human body and its functions. Perhaps the real reason is that doctors are likely to work too hard, keep too long hours, fall to make time and provision for doing what they advise others to do.

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

"THE LOVINGKINDNESS OF JEHOVAH IS FROM EVERLASTING TO EVERLASTING UPON THEM THAT FEAR HIM, AND HIS RIGHTEOUSNESS UNTO CHILDREN."
Psalm 103:17

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

The century and a half of history reviewed in this lesson was by no means a dull and uninteresting period, but one of fascinating changes in the rise and fall of nations that came from the refugees. "The city is had to do with God's people, and one full of tremendous changes in the nation of Israel itself.

The Babylonian exile was clearly foreshadowed by the prophets Jeremiah and Ezekiel. Ezekiel's entire ministry was spent in Babylon, where he was carried with the second of the three deportations of the captives, 10 years after the first contingent of captives carried Daniel and others of the nation's highest classes into exile, and 11 years before the exile was completed in the destruction of Jerusalem. For 11 years Ezekiel tried in vain to persuade the exiles in Babylon that Jerusalem would fall a prey to the Chaldeans, but his fellow exiles turned a deaf ear to his foreshadowing of such a calamity. After the news of the fall of the city came from the refugees, Ezekiel continued his ministry for 11 more years, foretelling the restoration of the nation to its former glory, and God's use of it as a river of blessing to enrich the whole world.

Israel Under the Shadow

Ezekiel's ministry, like that of Jeremiah, was to teach the people their personal responsibility before God for their own sins. The exile was not only a terrific national discipline, but each individual must see in it the punishment of his own personal sin against Jehovah, and personally turn to God for mercy and forgiveness. It was a dark period, in which it was difficult to sing the songs of Zion in a strange land. But the night brings out the stars, this dark period of Israel's history gave rise to some of the brightest hopes of the nation in the prophetic visions of Ezekiel and Daniel, the brightest of which still await fulfillment in the coming again in glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The Shadow of Exile Lifted

When the refining fires of God's furnace had done their intended work of driving out of God's people their ancient perversity towards idolatry, God lifted the cloud of exile that had enshrouded the nation for 70 years, and ordained their return to the land of their fathers to rebuild the city and temple of God. The return was accomplished in three contingents, just as their deportation had been in three sections. The first return was led by Zerubbabel in 538 B. C., the second by Ezra in 458 B. C., and the third by Nehemiah in 445 B. C. Zerubbabel's chief ministry was the rebuilding of the temple, that of Nehemiah the rebuilding of the walls and reorganizing the social and religious life of the people, making it so God-centered as to tide them over the turbulent days of persecution that filled the Maccabean period and much of four centuries between the ministry of Malachi, the last of the Old Testament prophets, and the fulfillment of his prophecy in the coming of the Christ, "the Sun of Righteousness with healing in his wings."

Of that period of the exile as it reveals God's presence in the shadows we may confidently say with the poet: "Behind the dim unknown, standeth God within the shadows, keeping watch above His own."

The International Uniform Lesson for September 29 is Isaiah 61: 1-9, the subject being, "Significance of the Exile and the Restoration," and the Golden Text, "The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children." Psalm 103:17.

NEW CASTLE'S MOST POPULAR SHOE STORE

Nowadays It's Silver's Ann A. Walker Because They Are Better

WHY ARE THEY BETTER? QUALITY FIRST!

Webster defines quality in his dictionary as a degree of fitness—excellence. But your measuring stick and our measuring stick, in the final analysis, are expressed in degrees of service, fit, style and our co-operation to please you.

When the mark of "Silver's Ann A. Walker" is stamped on a shoe it means all of these, in the highest degree known to us. For example: service or durability begins with the raw materials; we insist on the best and control every process in the making of these shoes. Carefully tested in every stage of manufacture, they are moulded and shaped into utility and style footwear under the guiding eye and supervision of the famous stylist Miss Ann A. Walker. The finished products are doubly inspected before they are shipped to you.

But tests do not stop here. A corps of women and men are permanently employed by us for the sole purpose of testing the finished products—they walk, run, or climb hundreds of miles in the course of a year to prove that these shoes will satisfactorily stand up under all conditions—such practical tests are convincing to us that the results of these efforts are worthy of carrying our mark of quality—"SILVER'S ANN A. WALKER HEALTH SHOES". And should be convincing to our customers that this is the best footwear that it is possible to offer them at these popular prices, $5.00 and $6.00.

Seventy-five distinct, exclusive and up-to-date styles created by our stylist to please every local store of our chain, in all wanted leathers, in all heel heights for every occasion. Sizes 1 to 11. AAAA to EEE wide.

Stewart Shows How Ship Program, Regarded By Many As Cinched, Fills Pessimists With Forebodings

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—To hear the optimists talk about the

Yes, and the pessimists also—because the two groups are in substantial accord as to what is about to happen—though the prospect fills the optimists with joy, whereas it fills the pessimists with forebodings.

Anyhow, to hear them both tell the same story is to hear that any naval program which the United States and Great Britain agree on is practically cinched—that President Hoover and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald have, in fact, agreed on one—that nothing remains but for them to shake hands on it in October—and that will end the matter.

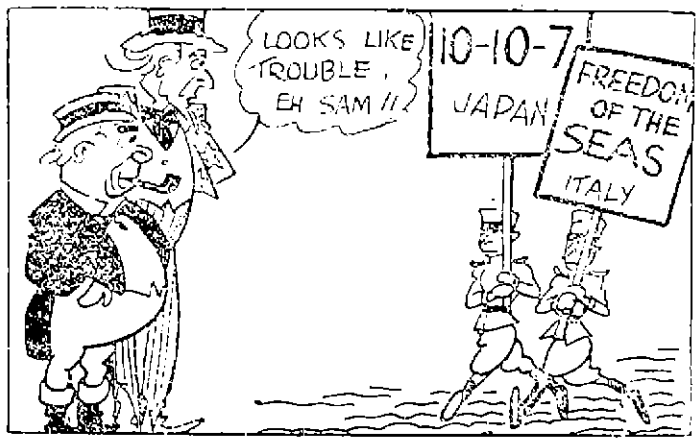

Reminded of it, even the optimists do recall that two or three other sea powers will have to be consulted before the pact can be regarded as definitely signed, sealed and delivered—to be exact, Japan, France and Italy.

However, Japan is only a secondary sea power, and France and Italy are only tertiary—Italy maybe only quaternary.

They will be amenable enough, the optimists are sure.

Still, for the sake of argument—supposing they balk? What of it? That needn't interfere with the Anglo-American bargain. These two first-raters' rivalry is between themselves, is it not? Certainly. Then they can limit themselves mutually, if they choose—and who cares how the small fry feel about it?

Thus reason the optimists, wreathed in smiles. Sighing gloomily, the pessimistic big navy-ites admit that they can see no flaw in it.

No flaw in it, hey?

Let us investigate.

Cruisers are the nub of the Anglo-American negotiations.

John Bull wants plenty of them—his empire is so widely scattered.

Uncle Sam wants naval parity or near-parity with John Bull, but needs fewer cruisers. If John Bull will promise to keep his cruiser fleet down to a minimum, they can make a deal; otherwise they will have to go on with their navy race—that is, cruiser building against one another.

Prime Minister MacDonald is ready to promise; that is the compact on which he expects to shake hands with President Hoover in October.

The Hoover-MacDonald handshaking in Washington is to be followed by a meeting of American, British, Japanese, French and Italian representatives somewhere in Europe, probably in January, to sign a regulary treaty—if no one throws a wrench into the machinery.

Why? Who would be guilty of so mean a trick?

Well, for instance, it might be Japan—though the Japanese, if they do such a thing, will consider it a necessary precaution, from their standpoint, and not a mean trick.

The famous Washington conference of 1921-22 fixed a naval ratio as between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, of 5-5-3, respectively.

Not much attention has been called to it, in connection with the recent Hoover-MacDonald exchanges of views, because it was a discordant note, but Japan hints that she will ask at the expected January meeting, for a change in the 5-5-3 ratio to a ratio of 10-10-7.

In other words, Japan wants a larger cruiser allowance, to put her nearer to an equality with the United States and Great Britain.

This would be very painful.

Talk peace as the powers may, Australia is mighty suspicious of Japan.

If Japan builds more cruisers, Great Britain assuredly must build more.

To satisfy Australia, if Great Britain builds more, the United States must build more. Japan must build more, to maintain her ratio. Whereupon, on account of Australia, Great Britain must build more.

And so on ad infinitum.

Moreover—some "freedom of the seas" agitators threaten to get into the proceedings' hearings when the January conference opens.

As everyone knows, the seas are as public as the atmosphere whenever Great Britain is at peace with the whole world, but become British private property the minute John Bull exchanges declarations of war with any other country on earth—and only open to navigation by neutrals subject to British regulations.

Although America once fought a draw with England on this issue, President Hoover has not so much as mentioned it (at any rate for publication) during his entire series of chats with Premier MacDonald—which may or may not be the reason why the discussion has progressed so amicably.

However, it is not an issue which seems likely to go by default after all, on the final showdown—to judge from Rome dispatches.

Italy is rather late in developing a freedom of the seas complex—but she never had Premier Mussolini before.

The thought evidently has struck Benito that his country, with no waterfront except on the Mediterranean, could be bottled up far too easily, by about one British warship in the Straits of Gibraltar and a battery or two at the Suez canal exit.

Semi-officially from Rome, therefore, it is stated—

That others may keep as quiet about it as they please, for the sake of harmony at the January conference, but Italy will sign no treaty minus an outright freedom of the seas guaranty.

America and the British would be glad to outlaw submarines.

France says "no" emphatically, referring to her undersea craft as her best and cheapest naval arm—and adding that "consistency is a virtue of small minds" when reminded of her wartime opinion of them under German management.

Well, Uncle Sam and John Bull can yield on that point.

They are apt to find Japan's 10-10-7 wrench and Italy's freedom of the seas fistful of sand harder on their conference machinery.

Britain Becoming Old Folks' Nation

(International News Service)
LONDON, Sept. 27.—Britain is becoming a nation mainly of elderly people and few young children, according to Sir George Newman, chief medical officer of the Ministry of Health.

A complete transformation of the composition of the population of Britain is rapidly occurring, according to this authority. While, at the beginning of this century, children easily outnumbered old people, at present there are many more persons over 55 than children under the age of five.

By 1914, Sir George Newman estimates, Britain will probably have (1) a stationary population; (2) more than two persons of late middle age or old age for every child.

"For more than a generation," Sir George Newman declares, "owing to the declining birth rate and death rates, the proportion of children has been decreasing and of persons past the prime of life increasing. The official estimate for 1928 gives 8.1 per cent of children under five and 15.3 per cent of persons over 55.

"There is no reasonable doubt that the change will continue. By 1941, 7.5 per cent of the population will be children and probably more than 19 per cent over 55.

No wonder the good think some card games wicked and others not. Statesmen make the same queer distinction in the matter of killings.

Expect Hundred Planes To Share Airport Program

Cloudy Weather Presages Low Ceiling For Pittsburgh
Port Plane Stunts

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 27.—Although cloudy weather gave promise of a low ceiling, preparations were completed today for the formal opening of the Pittsburgh-Butler airport of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation this afternoon.

At least 100 army, navy and commercial planes were expected to take part in the aerial exhibition that had been scheduled for today and tomorrow. Rain had been promised by the weather man but it was believed that the cloud banks would be dispersed by noon and that the flying activities could be held as scheduled.

Early today roads leading to the airport seven and one half miles north of Bakersville were crowded with automobiles as the van of the 50,000 persons who are expected to attend the opening began the trek along the highways.

The airport is one of the most modern in the country and additional improvements are scheduled for the future that will bring the total close to $5,000,000.

Airplane Ambulance

Butler, Pa., Sept. 27.—Pittsburgh-Butler Airport officials have designated a four passenger Fairchild's airplane to be used as an ambulance plane during the aerial celebration held today and tomorrow in connection with the opening ceremonies.

It is said to be the second ambulance plane in the country, the first being operated at Buffalo.

Rushing Work On Road To Volant

Work is being rushed on the improvement of the stretch of the East Brook to Volant road and reports indicate that concrete pouring will be started on the Volant end probably on Monday.

If good weather continues, the road may be completed yet this fall, it is said.

School Children Using New Bridge

There Is Also A Moving Being Carried Across It At Present Time

North street bridge, even though not officially open and the approaches not entirely completed, is proving a boon to a great many students from the Croton district who are attending high school.

They have been walking across the new structure going to and from school, cutting off a considerable distance.

And that is not all. There is a family planning to move from Ne-shannock avenue district to the Croton avenue district and for several days now they have found it exceptionally convenient to carry smaller parts of the house furnishings from Ne-shannock avenue to Croton avenue by way of the new bridge.

Huggins Funeral During Afternoon

Ceremony At Little Church Around Corner—Fans Pass Bier

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The gang will say goodbye today to Miller Huggins, a yard and a half of game guy with a heart as big as a baseball park.

With the crack of ball against bat stilled throughout the nation, the funeral for the mute manager of the New York Yankees will be held this afternoon in the little church around the corner.

It would have pleased "the little feller" to know that his mortal remains rests beneath the championship pennant that his team won in the last world's series—for baseball was his very life.

And some say that baseball was the death of him. For he neglected the minor infection which was later to cost him his life so that he might keep his ball club fighting to the end of the season.

Long lines of fans filed with bowed heads past the bier of the dead manager. They mourned a winner. He brought six American League championships and three world series' pennants to a town which loves a winner.

But Huggins did more than that. A team which used to scoff at him before his face and behind his back learned to respect and love their quiet little leader.

They will all be marching behind the casket of their dead general when the body is taken to the train for shipment to Cincinnati, the home of Huggins. He will be buried there beside his mother and father.

Nothing can make a man more air-conscious than a flat tire.—The Louisville Times.

ROAMING

With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations
Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

It's a nice thing once in a while to get out and visit your neighbors. Not just the neighbors that live next door or up the block a ways. Drove down to Alliquippa last night to attend a meeting of the Kiwanis Club of that thriving boro and found the lads down there as live as ever. There is a bond of friendship between New Castle and Alliquippa, for many of the good citizens down there are from New Castle. And I also found that the business men down there have a high regard for New Castle.

Rome and her seven hills hasn't a thing on Alliquippa. A hop skip and a jump to the right or left from the main street and you run smack dab into a young mountain. They and to level off the tops of some of the big hills to make room for houses, but they did it.

There is an agitation beginning down there to make Alliquippa a third class city. They have the population necessary, and some of the business men feel that they have outgrown their swaddling boro clothes and are ready for the long pants of a third class city.

They are rabid football fans, and quite cheerfully assured me that they were coming up to New Castle next week to trim the New Castle High school. Perhaps they are, at that, for their team this year is said to be "hot." And if we have to lose any games this year, it could remove the sting somewhat if the team that did it came from Alliquippa.

Some time ago Wes Davy asked me to keep his name out of this column and so nothing will be said about him. However, if anything was to be said it would be about his ability as a mushball player. He opened a game the other evening one of these formal openings in which he was to catch the first ball thrown.

Now a mushball is something about the size of a cantaloupe and how any one could miss it is a puzzle. But he did, missed it by a couple of yards, and his friends are suggesting that he buy a butterfly net. Now if the mushball had been a hairy fish—but that's another story.

Tonight is the night for the tilt with Rayon of Youngstown, O. If the rain just holds off long enough the crowd will probably be too large for the stadium. Get in early, and park your car far away from the stadium.

Occasionally the life of a column writer is enlivened by letters. Any kind. Letters from folks who agree with you and letters from folks who think you're out at sea in your statements. All of them are appreciated, for it takes all kind of people to make a world. Every machine has to have a few cranks and nuts and eccentrics, and the human family is no different.

Got an invitation to a Welsh tea party for Saturday night, down on the South Side. Now Welsh tea party isn't just an ordinary tea party. The bread is cut thin enough to see through, and it is already buttered when you get it. Then there are fancy little cakes, and plenty of real honest to goodness tea. Hope to get there, if the Leesburg road party doesn't last too long.

The Castleton will be a busy place on Saturday night. The vets of the 323rd Field Artillery will be in for their annual reunion and customers when the artillery gets together, there is always some excitement. There's something about the artillery branch of the service that has a wonderful appeal, and while a good artilleryman is never through work just like a cavalryman, yet once an artilleryman, always one. The average artilleryman will break down and confess at any time of the day or night, that if it hadn't been for the artillery, the war would have been a complete flop. We're glad to see the 323rd come to New Castle, and if the boys get a bit noisy, don't get excited. Nobody is going to get hurt.

See you tonight at the game. And if you have any influence with the Weatherman, by all means exercise it.

Jerome Smith, driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, $200 and costs and four months to county jail. Petition for parole will be entertained at the end of 45 days upon the payment of fine and costs. Smith, who is a coal miner at Beaver, had been over to the airport and was returning home with another man. At a point in Croyen near George Gibson's when traffic was heavy, he struck a machine parked on the right hand side of the road. He then ran across the road and upon the sidewalk in front of George Gibson's. Mr. Gibson claimed that he staggered when he got out of the machine. The other man in the machine fled. Fred Lycko, operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, $200 fine and costs and 6 months in jail. Parole in 3 months if fine is paid, claimed that he was sitting in his car by the roadside when he was arrested. He said that he had been sick and had taken liquor for medicinal purposes.

PRISON BARS GIVE YOUTH CHANCE

JESSE E. COGGINS as HE LEFT PRISON - a polished young man with an education.

WHEN HE ENTERED PRISON AT THE AGE OF 16 almost an illiterate.

Prison bars have made a new man of Jesse E. Coggins, 30, according to his own statement. When he entered the Missouri penitentiary 14 years ago, for the murder of his stepmother, he was almost illiterate. Now he has been paroled and has the equivalent of a college education, which he got by constant studying behind prison bars. Coggins took correspondence courses and also was aided by prison officials in his search for knowledge.

Photographer Found Dead

Alfred Streh, 66, Found Dead
In Room On Neshannock Avenue

Alfred Streh, 66, a photographer of this city was found dead today about one o'clock on a couch in his room at 311 1/2 Neshannock avenue. His death is thought to have been due to heart failure but at press time Coroner James P. Caldwell had not completed his investigation. Mr. Streh had been rooming at 311 1/2 Neshannock avenue for about 3 weeks, renting a room in the building owned by T. E. Smith. About one o'clock Mr. Smith received a telephone call from Rev. Antoni M. Turkiewicz, asking Mr. Smith to call Streh to the phone. Thought Asleep Mr. Smith went back to Streh's room and saw the man lying on a couch with his eyes closed. Going to the telephone Mr. Smith told Rev. Turkiewicz that Mr. Streh was asleep, where upon Rev. Turkiewicz asked if he might come up. Mr. Smith told him to come up and then went back into his office. Rev. Turkiewicz came to the room but a few minutes later came into Mr. Smith's office and said that Streh was dead. While he has been in New Castle for about 13 years, little is known of the deceased man.

Old Dobbin Made Useless By Motor Car And Tractor

WINCHESTER, Kan., Sept. 27. — That the tractor and the motor car virtually have made "Old Dobbin" useless on the farm, was demonstrated at a public sale held here recently. A mule brought $1.50. Several horses sold for $2.50 apiece and a span of work mares brought $12.50 each.

Malaria Real Help In Paralysis Cases

LONDON, Sept. 27. — Induced malaria as a successful treatment of paralysis is revealed in a recent report of Surgeon Rear Admiral E. T. Meagher covering experiments on a number of cases in English and Welsh hospitals.

"The treatment of general paralysis," his report states, "by induced malaria offers more promise of success than any other form of treatment; that has been given extended trial."

The treatment, which includes either artificial malaria inoculation or exposure to malarially infected mosquitoes, has been found, says Dr. Meagher, to increase the length of life, to render existence more natural, and to produce improvement in the physical condition and the mental state.

"The response in individual cases," he states, "varies from a negative result to apparent complete recovery." Over a period of five years 1597 cases have been treated in this manner. Of this number 3.9 per cent died, 40.8 per cent are still in hospitals, and 25.3 were discharged. Five out of six of the discharged cases still retain life and liberty.

GRAVE OF GEN. JOHNSON IS 'LOST' IN CEMETERY

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 27. — Richmond is stirred by a report that the grave of General Edward Johnson, one of the illustrious soldiers of the Confederacy is lost.

General Johnson died here March 2, 1873, and local newspapers of March 4, 1873, carry elaborate accounts of the funeral and burial in Hollywood cemetery.

But after an inquiry by Major General Charles D. Rhodes, of the United States Army, an investigation showed there was no cemetery record of the burial, and the soldier's grave could not be found. Cemetery officials are continuing the search.

VETERAN HAS TRAVELED BY ALL METHODS FROM OX TEAM TO AIRPLANE

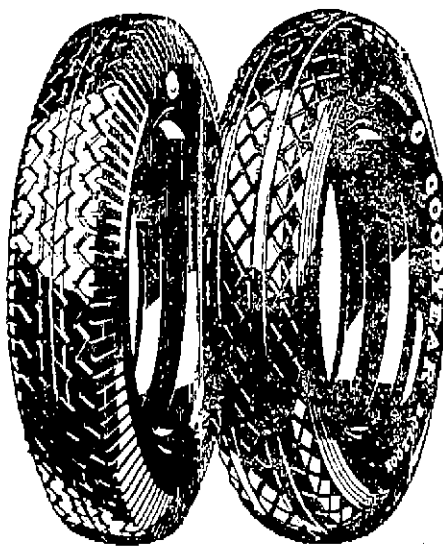

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 27. Robert Fullerton, 45-year-old retired lumberman, of Pasadena, has used practically every means of transportation since he landed in 1901-02. He founded out his experience by an airplane ride from Los Angeles. He formerly lived in Des Moines. Several years ago when he retired and moved to California he and Mrs. Fullerton said they would visit the old home once each year. Mrs. Fullerton boarded a train in Los Angeles Sunday night for the annual visit. Mr. Fullerton took the Western Air Express 36 hours later than his wife. He proceeded to Des Moines from here by train and said he would beat Mrs. Fullerton there by about three hours. There are 434,000 persons employed in the automobile industry in the United States.

Another "Old Habit" is passing out of the picture

WEARING the last miles out of old tires, during the slipperiest, most dangerous driving months of the year when "flats" often mean going into a ditch and skidding frequently causes crashes—

That was the old "habit." But, nowadays, car owners realize that this is the very time that safe new tires are most needed.

We are equipping many cars with new Goodyears right now. Their owners don't propose to take chances on smooth, thin tires by waiting until Spring.

No sir! And they get their new Goodyears cheaper, too, because we can allow more for the old tires now than later when they'd be done for.

See us about this before you have any more close scrapes or delays in cold, wet weather. The new 1929 Goodyears are the finest quality in history, lower priced and guaranteed against defects for life.

Ride in Safety Now

Pay us later when you'd ordinarily buy new tires for your car. This offer applies to charge account customers on trades of pairs or sets.

Pay Us Later

YEAR-ROUND SERVICE FREE! We clean and straighten your rims, apply the new Goodyears, inflate and inspect them regularly for you—without extra charge. We are always here to take care of you promptly.

Reported Recovering

(International News Service)

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Sept. 27.—

One prisoner was reported killed in a disturbance within the walls of San Quentin penitentiary Thursday.

Other reports were to the effect that the convict's death was the result of a riot among a large group of prisoners.

Prison officials would not comment on the disturbance as they went inside the inner walls to investigate.

STUDENT PILOT'S CRASH KILLS TWO

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 27.—Charles Polson, 20, said to be a Cleveland student pilot, and his flight passenger, Harold Baughman, 15, of Anderson, Ind., were killed yesterday afternoon when Polson crashed only 100 feet from the home of his parents near Anderson.

Polson had rented the plane from a nearby airport and was attempting to show his parents how he had progressed after nearly two years of flying. While starting almost over the house the plane slipped into a tail spin and crashed.

Polson's mother was the first to reach the scene.

NORMAN'S SELL OUT TO

Largest and Fastest Growing Credit Jewelers Established
77 Years In Pittsburgh Now Come to New Castle

BIG TRANSFER SALE

Starts Tomorrow Following Sensational Deal

Hi-Grade Merchandise But Not Hi-Grade Profits

Norman's handled strictly high-grade merchandise. They were "cocky" and a little on the "high hat order", loading up as they did on the higher priced articles. We admit all this. But Norman's could not buy like DeRoy's, nor do "the volume" that makes it possible to give as great values and as liberal credit as DeRoy's. High-grade merchandise won't sell very fast on "high grade profits". To do a big business a merchant has to cut profits as well as buy close, and that is exactly the DeRoy attitude.

Inaugurating A Great Friend-Making Campaign

We don't figure or gauge profits on the narrow idea that a sale is a sale, but on the broader idea that a sale means a friend. If the sale is put over with real satisfaction to the customer it may also bring that customer's friends to us, and their friends may bring other friends. There you have the S. H. DeRoy business policy, and if you look into this business policy you will understand what has made the two S. H. DeRoy Stores at 602 Liberty Avenue and 408 Smithfield Street, Pittsburgh, to say nothing of the McKeesport, Homestead and Johnstown stores, successes far ahead of anything else of their kind in this age.

A Credit System That Guarantees Cash Values

We don't care what other jewelers do or think. But we do not subscribe to the ethics which demand big profits on merchandise just because the quality and the style is there. DeRoy's do not handle inferior merchandise in any department. We handle only diamonds, watches, clocks and other jewelry and silverware that can be guaranteed. We carry and sell in all of our stores the nationally advertised merchandise on credit at the nationally advertised bonafide factory cash prices. Just because you are buying on Little Pay-Day Payments does not mean you must pay more. Not here. The easy credit you get at our stores costs not one cent extra. And this is not maybe.

REMEMBER That While This Sale is Going On We CANNOT Guarantee Quantities on EVERY ITEM. This Does Not Mean By the Time You Get Here the Line Will be Sold Out. IT Does Mean, However, That the Sacrifice is Too True and Too Great to Allow the Merchandise to Linger. You'll Have to Answer Our Ads While the Announcements are Fresh. # Petitions Are To Be Circulated In Behalf Of Neshannock Viaduct

Further impetus has been given the movement to have the county erect a viaduct across Neshannock Creek from the end of Lincoln avenue to Croton avenue, with the announcement today by officials of the Neshannock Viaduct Association, that several hundred petitions are being placed in the hands of New Castle and Lawrence county citizens to be signed by proponents of the viaduct. Those in close touch with the situation are confident that these petitions will be signed by more than 10,000 citizens, who have felt the need for such a connecting link for many years.

The Neshannock Viaduct was made an active issue four or five years ago, after the matter had been allowed to lie dormant for some time. When nothing was done and it seemed as though the matter would be allowed to die out again, the Neshannock Viaduct Association which had been active in the interests of the viaduct several years ago, was revived. New officers were elected at a meeting recently, and steps were taken to push the project to a successful conclusion.

Under the plans of the Neshannock Viaduct Association, the viaduct across Neshannock Creek from Croton avenue to Lincoln avenue, would link up all traffic coming into New Castle from the Southwest, West and North, by way of Jefferson street, one of the widest streets in the city and Lincoln avenue. Similarly, traffic coming into the city from all points east, including East Brook, Slippery Rock, Butler and Ellwood City, could pass over the viaduct to the north, west and south, without going down into the traffic congested section of the city.

They believe that their suggestion is one that cannot but receive favorable consideration from every progressive citizen of the city and county, as it has become an established fact that Washington street is unable to adequately care for the traffic which now passes through the city and great congestion results.

Placing of these petitions in the hands of residents of the city is but one of the steps to be taken by the Association in their determination that this viaduct shall be built.

Each petition contains ten vital reasons why the viaduct should be built and is worded as follows:

To The Commissioners Of Lawrence County, Pennsylvania:

"We the undersigned citizens of Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, hereby petition that a high level viaduct, be constructed across the Neshannock Creek from a point on Croton avenue, where Crawford avenue and Walnut street intersect, to a point on the North Side where Lincoln avenue and Crawford Terrace intersect, in support of the Neshannock Viaduct Association's plans to relieve congestion in the downtown section of New Castle, and afford better travel conveniences to the citizens of Lawrence County. Our belief in this petition and the need for a high level viaduct is based on the following facts:

- 1—A 635-foot span will connect the East and North sections of the city.
- 2—This span will link up Ellwood City, Butler, East Brook, and Slippery Rock highways leading into the city from the East with the New Wilmington, Coalton, Pulaski, Youngstown, Mt. Jackson, Enon Valley and Bessemer highways leading into the city from the west.
- 3—It will link up and provide a short route between the Lawrence County Fair grounds, Cascade Park, Ben Franklin stadium, New Castle hospital, Centennial baseball field, and the Jameson Memorial hospital, Scottish Rite Cathedral, New Castle High School, and all cemeteries on the North Side of the city. Each of these institutions or locations is in the high level sections of the city and causes a great amount of traffic to pass through the downtown section of the city from points east and west.
- 4—The Administrative Council of

New Castle endorsed this project and ordained a street on the proposed site, and also passed an ordinance providing for the approaches.

- 5—The Court of Lawrence County appointed viewers and they voted favorably on the project.
- 6—The Grand Jury of Lawrence County received the testimony of many prominent progressive citizens, voting favorably and strongly recommended it.
- 7—The City of New Castle Zoning Commission has endorsed and recommended it.
- 8—The City of New Castle Planning Commission has endorsed and recommended it.
- 9—The Morris-Knowles Company, traffic engineers of Pittsburgh, Pa., while employed by the City of New Castle, made a traffic survey and recommended it.
- 10—It will eliminate a great amount of traffic over a railroad grade crossing at the foot of Croton avenue hill, which is very dangerous and has already been the cause of many accidents."

Try Magnesia For Indigestion

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, chamois, drugs and various digestive aids and get little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bismarck Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial grade of this medicine, but pure Bismarck Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any drug-rist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment, and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow every meal surviving you out. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

Thick, wavy hair!

You, too, can have long, soft, abundant hair. It's simply a matter of using this easy method, approved by hair-specialists; endorsed by stars of stage and screen; used by millions who haven't time for the more laborious treatments.

Tonight when you arrange your hair, just put a little Danderine on your brush. Then as you draw the bristles through your hair, see how the scalp is toned and soothed. See how the hair becomes softer, easier to manage; how its natural color is brought out; how it takes on new brilliance and lustre!

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; helps stop falling hair; keeps hair and scalp healthy; encourages the growth of long, silky, abundant hair. Five million bottles used a year. That proves Danderine's effectiveness!

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Union Lodge Meeting Planned For October

Meeting To Be Held In City Hall; Other News Notes Of Seventh Ward

Members of the Grand International Auxiliary, No. 453 to Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, had their regular semi-monthly meeting Thursday afternoon in the City building hall. There was a good attendance of members. During the afternoon the routine lodge meeting was conducted, being presided over by the president, Mrs. Jack McCort.

On Thursday, Oct. 10, there is to be a union meeting of the Auxiliaries to Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in the western part of Pennsylvania and of some lodges from Ohio. This union meeting will be held in the City Hall building.

Definite plans for the union meeting are not yet complete. There will be morning and afternoon sessions at this union meeting. The morning session begins at 10 o'clock. At noon there will be dinner served for the lodge members in one of the churches. Other detail arrangements are being made and will be announced later. Plans for the union meeting were discussed at the meeting of the New Castle Auxiliary on Thursday.

LARKSPUR KENSINGTON
 The Larkspur Kensington members were entertained at a 12 o'clock dinner at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Hillers on Hartman street Thursday. The dinner table was centered with a bouquet of garden flowers. Covers were arranged for 12. Mrs. Thomas was a special guest. Following the dinner the afternoon hours were spent informally.

The next meeting of the club will be in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Wallace Park on Pennsylvania avenue.

SELECT BOOKS.
 The Mahoning Book club members met at the home of Mrs. A. R. Morries of West Clayton street Thursday afternoon. The meeting was for the purpose of selecting books to be read by the club this year.

Twelve members were present at the business meeting. The list of books selected will be left at Member's. After the business meeting the club adjourned.

The first meeting of the club of the fall will be held at the home of Mrs. G. H. Cook of Newell avenue on Thursday October 10.

PLAN FOR EUCHE.
 Members of the Mabel Wilson lodge to Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen had their lodge meeting Thursday evening in the Knights of Malta hall. During the evening at the lodge business meeting plans were made for a euchre and five hundred party. Committees appointed in charge of the euchre: Mrs. B. G. Freeburn, Mrs. Alice Taylor, Mrs. Ouida Collingwood, Mrs. Florence Good, Mrs. Jane Campbell.

EXPECTED HOME.
 A. R. Morries of West Clayton street is expected to return home from Erie today. Mr. Morries has been serving on the grand jury all this week and a part of last week in Erie.

RALLY DAY SUNDAY.
 Plans are well under way for rally and promotion day to be observed Sunday in the Bible schools in the Mahoning Presbyterian church and Madison avenue Christian church. There will be promotion day exercises and diplomas will be given to Sabbath school scholars.

Children of the Bible schools will take part in the programs.

ON SICK LIST.
 George Hettenuh of W. Madison avenue is confined to his home by illness.

HOME FROM CALIFORNIA.
 Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mullen and children have returned home from California. Mr. and Mrs. Mullen have been in California nearly four months having left here the first day of June.

Returning here they have taken an apartment in the Norris Block, Liberty street. Prior to leaving here they resided on Cherry street.

Accident Victims Are Recovering

Mrs. E. M. Jones And Two Children Recovering Nicely From Injuries

Delphine Jones, aged five, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Jones of Sunny Side, was removed to her home Tuesday evening from the New Castle hospital.

Last Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Jones and two children, Delphine and Myrtle, were in an automobile accident on the Mt. Jackson road. Mrs. Jones and the two children were badly cut about the head and face by flying glass. Delphine was the more seriously injured. She had many lacerations about the face and head.

Donald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jones, has been in the hospital in Pittsburgh, Pa. for the past 14 weeks. Donald had his arm broken some time ago and the arm did not heal right and left his hand paralyzed. He is in the hospital having this condition remedied. There is still to be another operation.

Mrs. Jones and the two girls are all recovering from their injuries at their home. Mr. Jones was not injured.

RETURNS HOME
 Miss Bessie Hettenuh of West Madison avenue returned home recently from Hamburg, N. Y., and Erie, Pa. She had been away three weeks. In Hamburg she visited with her sister, Mrs. S. L. Duval. In Erie, Miss Hettenuh visited with Mrs. J. W. Thomas and Mrs. Jack O'Hara, former residents of the ward.

HOME FROM CAMP
 Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bumbaugh and daughter Thelma of Sixth street came in Tuesday evening from their cottage at Cottage Grove on the Volant road. They have been at their cottage the entire summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jones of North Cedar street came in from their cottage at Cottage Grove this past week.

CHANGE RESIDENCE
 Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Lytle of 108 W. Wash. avenue are moving to 407 W. Madison avenue, in the house formerly occupied by Mrs. Elizabeth Hoyle.

HOME FROM HOSPITAL
 Mrs. Louis Natale of N. Cedar street was removed to her home this week from the New Castle hospital. Mrs. Natale underwent an operation for appendicitis three weeks ago. She is recovering nicely.

CORN ROAST
 Members of the Loyal Workers' class of the Madison Avenue Christian church had a corn and Weiner roast Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Clark of Sunny Side. There was a good crowd in attendance and an enjoyable evening was had. Mrs. C. J. Rafferty was general chairman in charge. This event took the place of the regular monthly class meeting.

Spectacular
Pageant

ELLWOOD CITY, Sept. 27.—The audience at the Shelby auditorium Thursday night was transported from the cares of this hum-drum world back through the ages to the time before Christ, when Ruth, a character in the famous book of Ruth in the Old Testament, demonstrates her fateful faithfulness to her mother-in-law and sister-in-law, in returning to their land with them, and as a reward for her unselfishness, she is wooed and won by the handsome Boaz, wealthy land-owner. The pageant is being presented under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church, and Mrs. Amelia Wilson personally directed the placing of the characters to form beautiful and authentic pictures of the activities of those olden days.

The costumes are particularly beautiful and graceful, and as Mrs. Wilson explained in a prologue when she introduced the characters to the audience, "These costumes are exact replicas of those worn in those far-off days, according to historical studies of authority." The main characters in the pageant: Naomi, the character portrayed by Mrs. Robert Craney, was one of dignity and charm. In her dignified robes and regal bearing, never for one instant did Mrs. Craney forget that she was "Naomi." The part of "Ruth" was played by Miss Elizabeth Beltz, who modeled herself skillfully in its entirety. "Orpah," the other sister-in-law, was played by Miss Sue Cox, who made a pretty picture as she posed gracefully in her crimson robes. It would be hard to find three such perfect characters as Naomi and her two daughters-in-law, and the first nine scenes of the pageant tell of their members from various choirs over the city participating.

Soloists who used their talents to bring the story of Ruth to a more fitting presentation, and acted as counterparts of the biblical characters were: Mrs. Thelma Powell Schenck, Mrs. W. R. Thompson, Miss Mary Blocher, P. W. Blocher and John Streeter.

The story of the Book of Ruth winds on to a triumphant close where her land-owner purchases her from a kinsman, and the gorgeous wedding chorus rings out, the cymbals clash, and the pantomime goes into jubilant action for the final scenes, the choir brings its musical score to a close, the lights flash up and there you are in the Shelby auditorium in the year 1929.

Paul Winter, superintendent of music in the local schools, conducted the musical score of the piece, and a section of the high school band rendered several selections in a manner fitting to the occasion. Miss Margaret Reynolds, as pianist for the pageant, was another good reason for the success of the evening's educational entertainment. It, the pageant, is such a pleasing departure from the customary cheese-cloth draping of the average effort, that it is well worth seeing, and no bible student, particularly should miss it. Among the out-of-town patrons last night were Prof. and Mrs. Paul Browne-Patterson of New Castle. The cast follows:

Foot Ball Season Formally Opens

Band Will Accompany The Team On The Field, Playing Popular Local School Airs

ELLWOOD CITY, Sept. 27.—The formal opening of the 1929 season for football takes place Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Lincoln athletic field, when Ellwood City high clashes for the opening game with the formidable team from Zelenople high.

Ellwood fans will have an opportunity to see what Coach Lee has done with the material at hand and how the 1929 team, which has many new men, stacks up against a fair opponent in the Zelenople clash.

The high school band will be out in full regalia, and the bleachers will be filled with fluttering ribbons, canes, pom-poms, peanuts and pop. The rosters will be out on mass, having conducted a pep meeting this morning, to be all in readiness with their moral support Saturday afternoon.

Youngstown Air Man Has Trouble In Landing Here

Speaker At Rotary, Pilot From Youngstown, Has Difficulty
In Locating Airport

ELLWOOD CITY, Sept. 27.—Another statement regarding the poor marking in Ellwood City for the air pilots was revealed Thursday evening at the weekly dinner meeting of the local Rotary Club, when Lieut. Shoemaker, a flyer from the Youngstown airport, admitted that he had considerable difficulty locating the local field. He circled over the town expecting to see the name on some large roof, with an arrow pointing in the direction of the field. He discovered neither name, field, hangar or planes, and finally flew to New Castle, where he left his plane for his pilot to take back to Youngstown and flew here with a New Castle pilot who knew the location of the airport.

Lieut. Shoemaker did not voluntarily criticize Ellwood, but in answer to questions he stated that every town containing an airport should be marked with its name, an arrow pointing to the port and another large arrow pointing north, as a form of direction.

Lieut. Shoemaker gave a very interesting talk concerning his experiences as a flyer. He was active during the war and after the armistice engaged in barnstorming out in the Dakotas, but found no one would fly in those days except the Indians and the inebriated. He stated that the United States government is protecting the people by issuing licenses to planes, and any plane having passed government inspection bears the letters "C" and a plane showing the initials "N. C." can fly over the international boundary line.

A letter was read from Mrs. Earl Yahn regarding the project of having a community house for young people and a medium of meeting house for local organizations. This letter was turned over to the board of directors for investigation and a report back to the club. The dinner meeting took place in the dining room of the First Presbyterian church.

TWO KILLED AS CHICAGO POLICE CLASH WITH CULT

One policeman and one negro were killed, two policemen were wounded, one probably fatally, and two negroes were wounded in a Chicago riot when police broke into a flat in the heart of the "black belt," looking for Kirkman Bey, cult leader of the Moorish Science Temple of America and the world, who had been kidnapped by other leaders during a feud. There are said to be 27 temples in various cities whose members are believed to be fighting against white supremacy. Bey, who is said to have opposed violence, was rescued by police. Left, Edward J. Tussey and Owen Ward, policemen who took part in the shooting, and above, the scene of the riot. State militia were called out to guard armories and prevent clashes.

Couple See Fortune In Oil Signed Away

"Paid Up Life Policy" Proves Document Transferring Share In Royalties

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 27.—After having a fortune almost in their grasp Arthur Johnndrow and his wife, Dorothy Miranda, admitted through suits filed in district court they had not realized a single dollar from the oil pool opened on their property. The Johnndrows own twelve lots in Greenway. It was on this property that the Johnndrow well was brought in yielding about 700 barrels a day.

The Johnndrows saw their first fortune fade when the test missed the oil-bearing strata, which other tests in the Greenway area have picked up. Then the big well was brought in and fortune seemed to smile again. Examination of the records showed that of the one-eighth royalty they retained as land owners, all but half of a fourth of the eighth had been assigned away for the proverbial song, and even this slender hold on the potential fortune is threatened by a suit in district court. Four suits seeking to regain title to the royalty were filed in court.

The petitions set forth that D. L. Williams purchased the original oil and was lease for which he was to give the couple a paid-up life insurance policy. He brought two papers to the Johnndrows to sign, it is alleged, and they signed them to learn later they had signed away half of their royalty. Clarence R. Sowers, attorney was employed to recover from Williams. It is said, Melvin King, Roy Sharp and Sowers all acquired parts of the royalty in some manner, it is alleged. The total amount paid to the Johnndrows was $655. Fraud was alleged in the suit against Williams. Irene Williams, his wife, however, has filed suit to recover that part of the royalty held by Sowers.

PASTEL TABLECLOTH IS PRACTICAL

The family dinner table with children present, may now follow the fashion for pastel tinted table coverings, with the arrival of water-proof tablecloths. The table illustrated is set with self-patterned, pastel tinted fabric cloth that is waterproof. The earthenware is a deep color with green trim and is not easily cracked or chipped. The glasses are of a moderately heavy crystal of the footed variety which allows a firm hold for small hands. The design was selected by Ellen D. Wagner, editor of The American Home Magazine.

GLENN HUNTER FACES CHARGE

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—Glenn Hunter well known actor appearing in the leading role "Re-Born" here and Sanford McCauley, member of the cast, were to appear before a justice of the peace late today to answer charges of aggravated assault and battery preferred by a taxi cab driver, it became known this afternoon.

Warrants were served on Hunter and McCauley during a rehearsal. The charge was made by John O'Connor, taxi cab driver, who asserted he was accosted by Hunter and McCauley after they had an argument with a driver of a rival company.

O'Connors alleged that the actors started an argument with him and felled him with a blow on the head. Special motor vehicle taxes are more than equivalent to all highway maintenance costs, state and local. There are a total of 31,778,203 automobiles registered throughout the world.

U. S. Tourists Spend Millions In Canada

Report Sets $250,000,000 As Total Poured Over Border
In 1928

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27.—"Information relative to tourist trade in Canada, recently issued by the Canadian National Railways, points out in an interesting manner the importance of the Ambassador Bridge and Detroit-Windsor tunnel as facilities improving international communication," asserts Allen S. McNeil, President of Allan S. McNeil & Co., prominent developers of South Windsor properties in the Academy District in the bridgehead and tunnel head sections of the Border Cities area.

The figures published by the Canadian National Railways include the totals for 1928, which show an increase of more than 300 per cent. since 1920 in trade with tourists from the United States. This compilation shows that American tourists spent nearly $250,000,000 in Canada during the year just passed. When the bridge and tunnel are completed there is no question but that the Detroit-Windsor District will become a favorite, if not the leading point of tourist entry into Canada, with large benefits to both Detroit and the Windsor border district accruing from a stream of tourists carrying this huge sum of "spending money."

"In Detroit a large portion of present residents were originally 'tourists,' whose first visit was prompted by a desire to see the city's famous industrial plants in action, and who saw as well greater opportunities than their home communities offered. Desiring to take advantage of these opportunities they returned as permanent residents."

Heavy Sentences At Uniontown

Liquor Law Violators Feel Heavy Hand Of Law
Today

(International News Service)
UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 27.—Judge S. John Morrow today handed down sentences in a number of liquor cases which are believed to be the most severe ever imposed in Pennsylvania.

The judge fined R. C. Bledsoe, former county detective and for many years head of the detectives of the Connellsville division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, $3,500 and sentenced him to serve three and a half years in the Allegheny county workhouse.

A fine of $1800 was imposed upon Max Hannan, who at one time was a power in Republican circles in Fayette county, together with a jail sentence of 18 months.

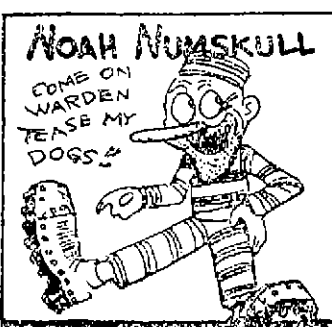

Others who felt the heavy hand of the judge for liquor law violations and their sentences were: E. R. "Big Ed" Wonsler, $3,600 fine and three years in the workhouse; Sam Spinella and Ben Borge, $3,000 fine each and two and a half years in jail; and Carmelo Sturiale, $1,500 fine and a year and a half in jail. Bledsoe, Borge, Spinella and Sturiale were arrested in connection with the operation of a still near Connellsville.

All defendants pleaded guilty to the charges.

PET MONKEY IS CAPTURED

Officer Uses Strategy In Effecting Capture At Noon

It was reported to the police station today about noon, that there was a pet monkey running at large in the vicinity of 1817 East Washington street and it was desired that it be captured and kept where it belonged. It just happened that Motorcycle Officer Charles Augustine drew the assignment and when he arrived in the district, found that the monkey belonged to a woman named Wagner residing at 1821 East Washington street.

The monkey was very much at home in the tree tops of the district and while the officer can climb, he decided that a little bit of effort other than climbing would work better.

So some bananas were secured from a nearby store and also an empty box and sure enough the monkey let its curiosity get the best of it and came down for the bananas.

The police officer had the box ready and it was but a short time until the monkey was in captivity at its regular home.

Pedestrians Do Have Rights!

YOU might think from reading the papers that the pedestrian has few, if any, rights on the highways. Keep in mind, points out the National Safety Council, that no less an authority than the United States District Court of Appeals, has very clearly prescribed that the pedestrian not only has a moral right but also has a legal right to safety on the highways. As long as he steps off the curb while the green light is with him he is entitled to legal protection clear across the street and an autist who strikes him under these conditions is liable under the law.

Went To Bail A Pal, Stayed To Bail Self

Milwaukee Man Takes His Roll
To Marshall, Is Arrested
As Bootlegger

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 27.—Take the poet, Paul Rudsky counts that day lost whose low descending sun views from his hand no worthy action done. And so Paul, filled with that "my old pal" spirit, journeyed down to the United States marshal's office on a Friday—but he forgot that it was Friday the thirteenth.

In his pocket, Paul had a roll of $500—all cash. He planned to use it to bail out a buddy, Sam Redshaw, arrested when dry agents raided a house and came upon a 50-gallon still and 50 gallons of moon.

Paul, an employee of the sewage commission, breezed up to the marshal, plunked down the bankroll and demanded Sam's release. A check of records showed that Sam had been bound over to the grand jury and his bail was $1,000.

"And just a minute," said the marshal. "So your name is Paul Rudsky. Well, we have a warrant for you too, so it is just as well you brought them that $500. You may need it. Who knows?"

Rudsky was promptly escorted before United States Commissioner Kellogg, charged with complicity in the operation of the still. And his bail was fixed at—what do you think?—$500. He just had it.

"Me and Redshaw are only friends," he declared. "I am his buddy. That is, I was."

Father To Listen In At Trial Of Beal

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 27.—(The aged father of Fred Erwin Beal, communist organizer of the Gastonia strike, will listen in on his son's trial for his life which comes up again here September 30.

Twelve other capital accused strike organizers and strikers will face trial along with Beal for murder charges growing out of the assassination of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt, killed in a raid on union headquarters. Three women face lesser murder charges.

The International Labor Defense, which is directing the strikers' fight for acquittal, announced that the elder Beal, who is a retired railroad worker residing in Lawrence, Mass., has been furnished money with which to come here for the trial.

GATHER DATA ON ALMSHOUSE CASES

HARRISBURG, Sept. 27.—Pioneering in the centralization of welfare statistics, Pennsylvania is the first state to begin the compilation of case records in the county almshouses throughout the commonwealth.

The case record system which is being installed under the direction of C. W. Parritt, statistician of the state welfare department, with the approval of Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, welfare secretary, makes available at any time an individual record of each of the approximately 12,000 inmates of the almshouses in the state.

With a constant list of about 12,000 inmates annually and a yearly turnover of approximately 8000 of these inmates, the case record system is being installed to replace the old system of registration, under which an individual was admitted to an almshouse, his or her case came to the record of the state welfare department, lacking in detail and many times no records of admission were sent in. Under the new system now being installed, when an individual is admitted his or her complete history is recorded in triplicate, and one of the cards forwarded at once to the welfare department. A second card, one of the three made out upon entry, is forwarded to the welfare department upon the death or discharge of the inmate.

Included on the cards are the general causes of admission. With this information at hand the work of agencies specializing in physical and mental defects is facilitated and a census at all times of almshouse inmates in the state is available.

The work of field representatives of the department of welfare is also facilitated by the fact that much of their time heretofore given to the preparation and keeping of records, can now be devoted to inspections and case investigations.

In cases where unmarried expectant mothers are admitted to almshouses for the birth of their children, the welfare department immediately gets a check upon the children who in many cases prove defective mentally or physically and through early institutional care and treatment are restored to normal, saving the state and outside agencies great sums of money for care and treatment when the child's deficiencies have developed to advanced stages.

Within the next few months the almshouse case record system is expected to be functioning throughout the state, when similar systems will be operated by the bureau of children and the State Council for the Blind.

TURNS OUT TO BE BOY

(International News Service)
BRUSSELS Sept. 27.—Boys will be boys and sometimes girls, as well!

A very much embarrassed jury at Cooxide, a small family resort on the Belgian coast near this city, spent the good part of a hot day recently electing the beauty queen among a score and more charming young women who presented their charms.

Their final choice was in keeping with the taste of the public who cheered wildly while the queen was being crowned and afterwards embraced by the jury and the town authorities. A dance followed and the charming queen was the great hit of the evening, with the men almost coming to blows in order to have a fox-trot with her.

During the last dance, she stepped on to a table and asked for silence. When all eyes were turned on her, "she" pulled off her wig, wiped the paint from her face and the jury found that their beautiful "queen" was really a "king."

NEVER IN THIS WORLD

by STEPHEN MOREHOUSE AVERY

W OVEN into the high green background of Connecticut meadows, a bright strand of road mounted between low gray walls of piled field stones. Sections of the wall were blanketed with climbing roses, and an offshore breeze, braced with salt, bore also a moist fragrance of the earth itself, for it was that time of year and it was morning. Farther on up the rise a very tiny girl, perched atop the wall, made a blue spot against the blue sky, and a black spot, zigzagging aimlessly in the road as he climbed toward her, was a very small venturing boy.

The tiny girl watched his approach with her head cocked alertly, her flying hair swarming with sunbeams, a tuneless speculative child's hum on her lips, until finally he stopped in the road opposite and stared at her with an unabashed, brown-eyed fixity which meant that she was something to be examined, judged, and rated against other strange discoveries.

As for him, he was not strange. He was just a sturdy little lad in improvised pants, scuffed shoes, and a cap which was yanked so askew over his eyes that he had to tilt back his head to see her. Presently an impulse of male initiative emerged from his uncertainty. With a thrust of his chunky arms deep into his pants pockets, he said, "Want to race?"

That was by way of testing her reality. Little girls, according to his standard, never had front teeth, always wore rubber bands around their bobtails of straight hair, and spent their whole lives teasing, tattling, bawling, and asking for your candy—if you had any. But this one was more like the picture on the cover of Tommy Wilcox's bedtime storybook, and her first remark made him wonder if she weren't lost out of there. "Paul doesn't allow me to race," she said, "not since I fell asleep chasing Mr. Red Top. That's the clever fairy."

The small boy thought it all over and then with subtle relevancy said, "I'm seven."

But she only smiled happily and turned her blue-eyed, shell-clear bit of a face to the breeze so that her plaiting hair blew. "Soon I'll be grown up too. I'm as good as five. What's your name?"

He scowled but told her: "It's Benny."

"Benny what?"

"Benny Trout. What's yours?"

"Mine's Susan." She laughed raily in a high little glee.

"Susan what?"

"Susan Dodd."

She evidently thought names were fun. "Paul Vane Dodd is my dad," she went on. "We live in that white house down there where my finger points. No, this fence. I have a puppy named Twinkle, but he's not so well today. I call my dog Lull."

"I got a ma," said Benny. He went over and sat in the grass at her feet, adding with a faint swagger, "I just call her ma."

"What do ma do, Benny?" Susan hopped down in the grass beside him like a flitting bird.

"Well," began Benny, feeling more comfortable in the position of an authority, "ma scrub you in the tub and tie knots in strings and give you a nickel. They always say you're filthy, but if you get a pain they rub it."

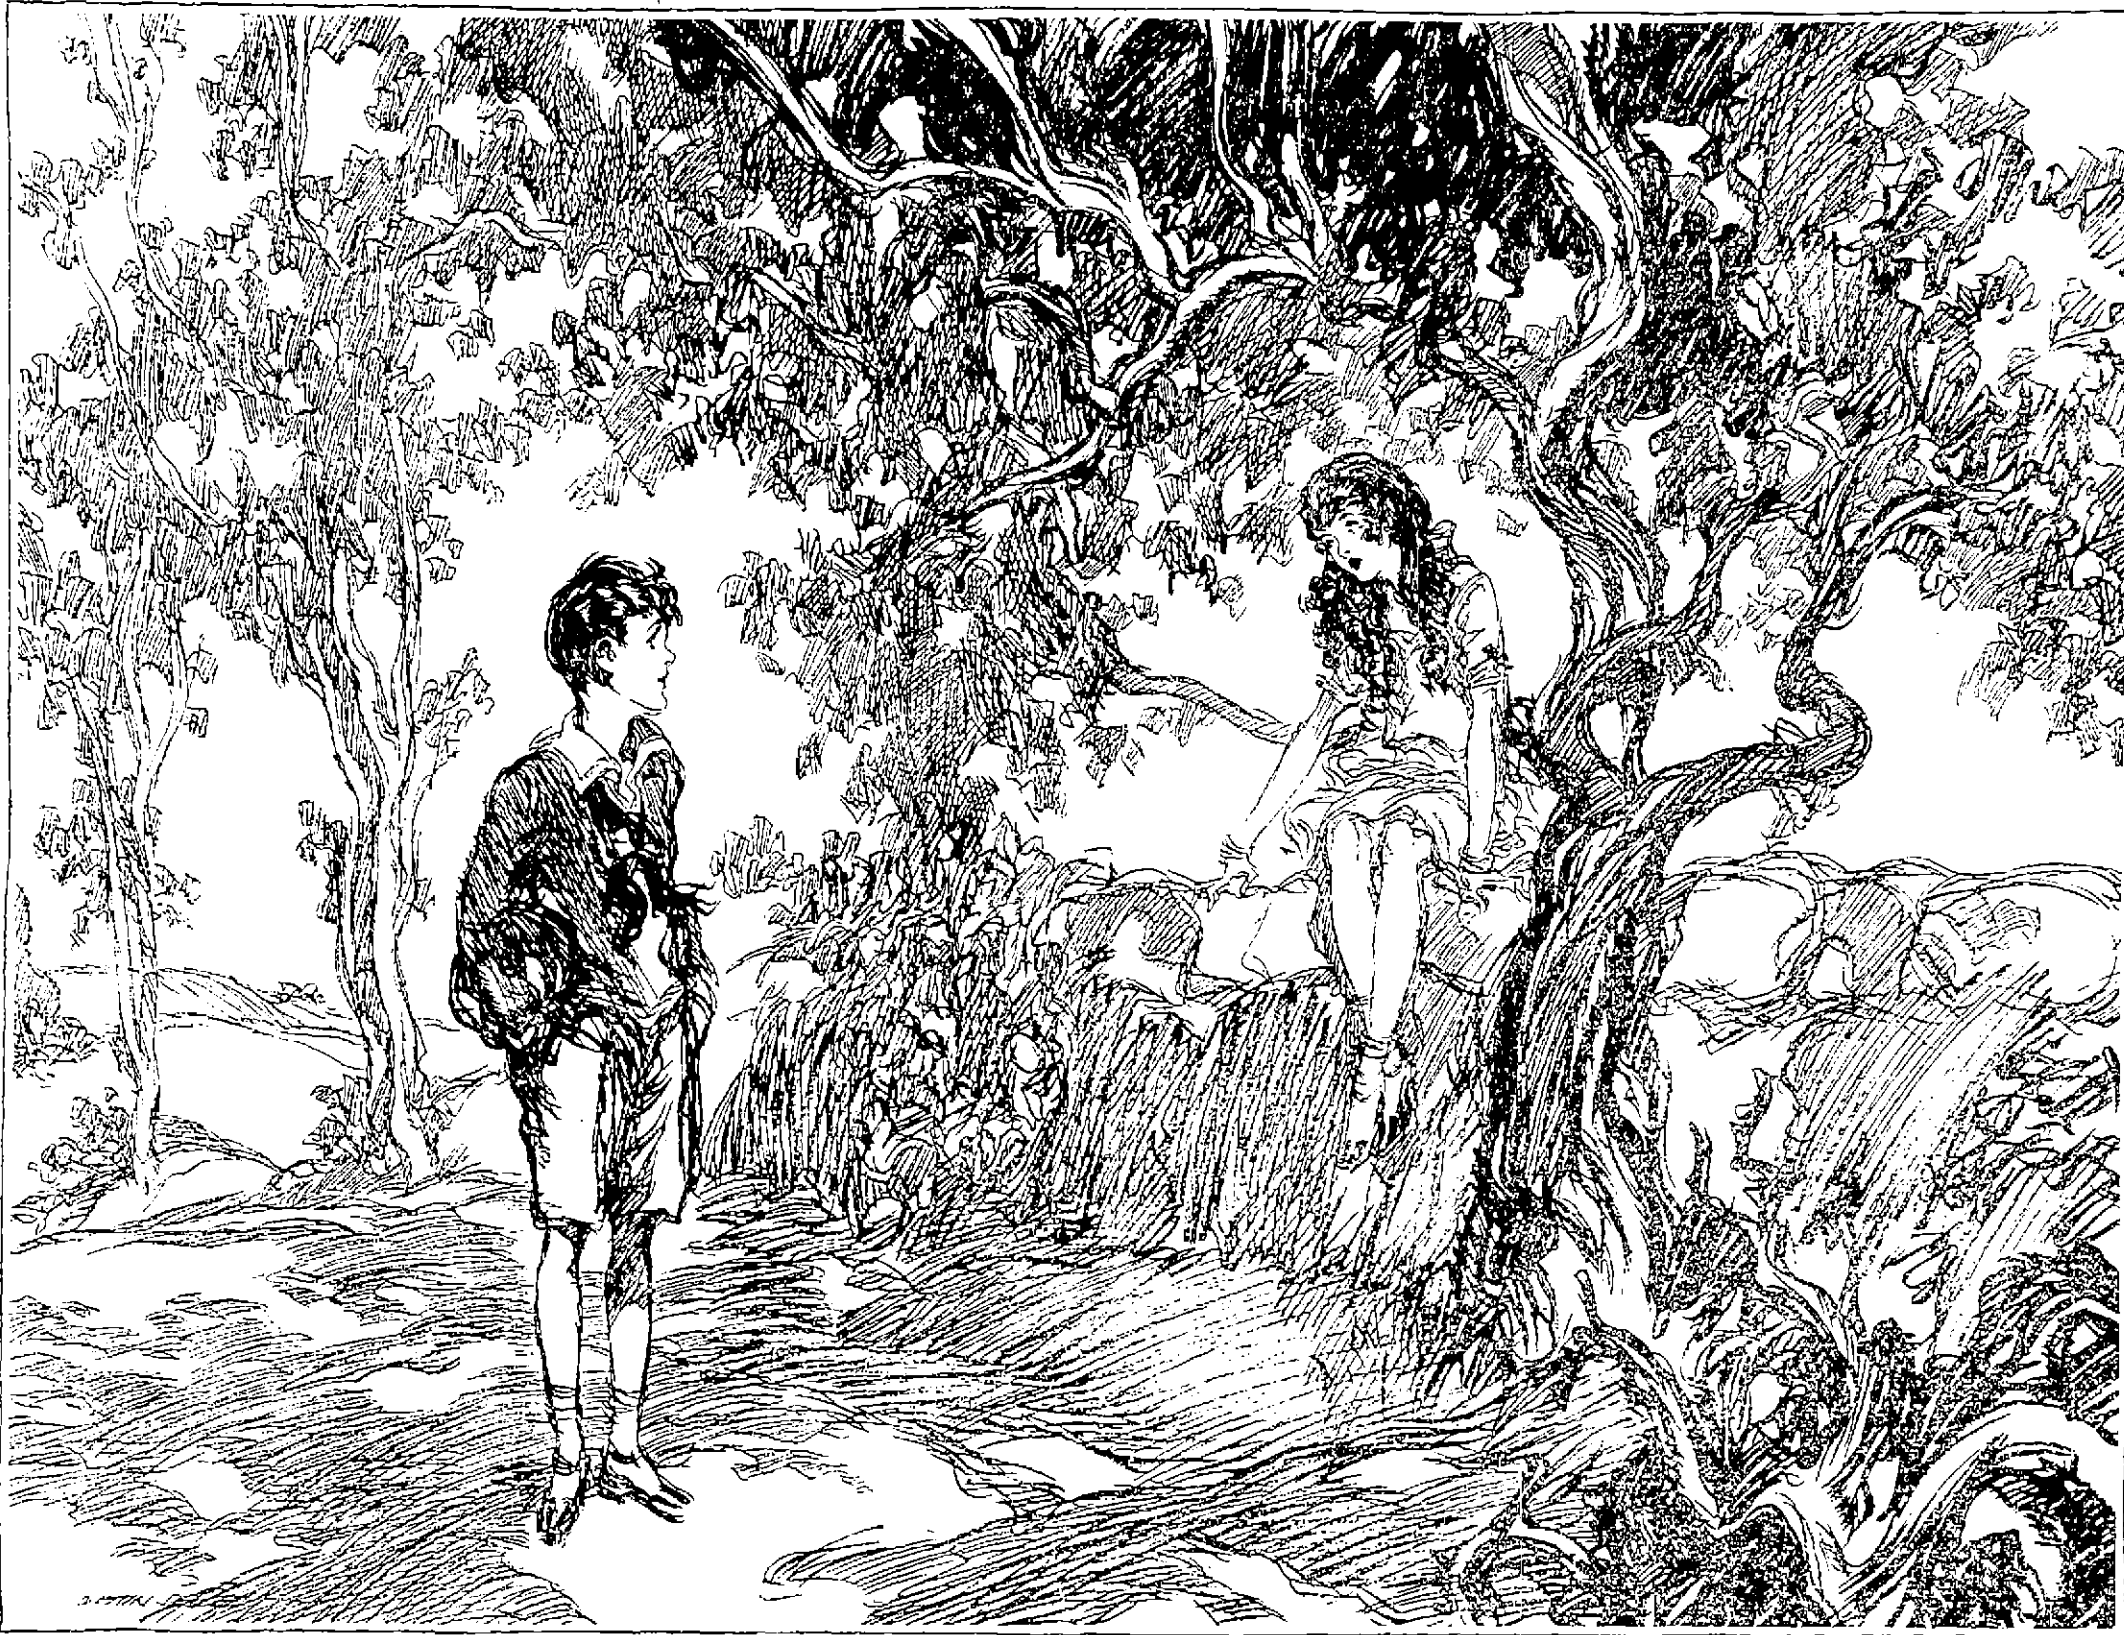

"Is that all?" Susan was apparently both surprised and relieved. "My Paul does all that. I'd much rather have Paul. You keep your ma, Benny, and I'll keep Paul." Her attention went suddenly to a blue jay which alighted on the wall a few yards away, and she called to it and beckoned it with both hands. But the blue jay didn't come. Benny scowled indignantly to his feet. "Blue jays can't talk. I go to school," he said flatly.

Hand in hand they crossed the field toward her white house. "This is the field where I chased Mr. Red Top, who was killing a big yellow butterfly," said Susan. "Away over to that wall I chased him, and then I fell asleep, and Paul found me and carried me home and said, 'Susan, you must be home, and you really need to race, Benny.'"

Behind a desolate salt-marsh border which separates it from the sound of the village of North Merce, huddles its quaint white cottages in the shades of old oaks. The New York, New Haven & Hartford rockets through North Merce without stopping, and a stream of motors on the Boston Post passes through without halt and, for the Wilcozes, Ripleys, Bromleys, Towns, Trouts, who have spent two and a half centuries there, time also has passed down the quiet main street without any real effect.

Motors, movies, radios, magazines have made no difference. North Merce has an attitude toward all these modern things—just as it has an attitude toward occasional "outsiders," such as that little Mr. Dodd and his child, who with a look of pale city bewilderment come there to catch a few years' breath and be wondered and talked about and succeeded until they finally disappear and are forgotten by the Wilcozes and Bromleys and Trouts. For who in this world, the world of North Merce, were the Dodds?

True enough, Paul Vane Dodd, as his name appeared on a few unknown, large-print four-color books of child tales and as author of infrequent and inept things in minor magazines, was no one of importance in any world. He and his little girl—in spite of rumors, one assumed the man's wife was not living—had occupied the old Ripley house in the high meadows for the past three years, and until old Dr. Townson, who went there regularly every week, let slip something which colored their quiet, isolated life with a journalistic suspense, they were left to themselves.

So the weeks of summer drifted by, like the serene passage of white clouds across the blue. Near the post-office door, Esther Trout and Martha Townson, the doctor's sister, dropped their market talk and leaned closer together when little Mr. Dodd, nodding pleasantly, stopped by them on the way inside for his mail. "Queer about those Dodds, no trade or business, just mailing and getting back envelopes. Who knows but what his wife ran off with somebody? That's the way with New York folks. You'd think he'd be worried if what they say—"

"It's true," said Martha Townson. "My brother, Dr. Fred, says that much. Maybe Dodd just doesn't care. Doesn't even go to church, does he?"

Mrs. Trout's eager interest flared in her chin, colorless face. "No, he doesn't. And the little girl doesn't go to Sunday school either. The thing that worries me is my little Benny getting his young head full of the fairy nonsense they talk. It's been going on all summer, and yesterday he came home and told me that whereas he appeared to be a little Benny Trout he was in reality none other than Prince Benjamin of the Magic Mud. He said the magic mud was to be found in the hollow below Dodd's house, that little Susan Dodd believes she actually is a fairy and pretends she can talk to blue jays and frogs and squirrels. The ideal!"

A younger woman, dark and with some sort of steady heat behind her half-shut eyes, stood near them, near enough to overhear. Her hands kept gripping and relaxing as though the emptiness of being a widow and childless at thirty-five hurt her with a physical pain. She watched the post-office door until Dodd came out with another flat brown envelope, and then she fell into step beside him. "I've baked the cake, Mr. Dodd," she said, "the orange cake you asked for."

He glanced at her vaguely. "That's very nice." And then, as if recalling his mind from distant thoughts: "Did I ask you to bake a cake, Mrs. Wilcox? Well, I probably did."

When he began fumbling in his pockets, she said: "Oh, you mustn't pay me. The cake is for Susan. I'll bring it over. How is the cook I found for you working out?"

"Very well," he said. "I meant to thank you. Or did I thank you before?" His thoughts had fled again, and he did not even bear her suggestion that if Susan's little dresses needed any mending.

At the corner he glanced at his watch, bowed, and left her, turning down the short side street which led to the station. The 10:12 for New York was due.

He leaned against a battered trunk on the long platform, waiting for the train, while his gaze followed the bright threads of the rails southwestward out of sight, and his imagination, like an electric current, followed them to their end.

Paul Dodd blamed himself, for he had bungled. And New York had rolled over him as it rolls over its thousands who go back West or who, bereft even of that courage, retreat beyond the sound of battle into Jersey or to the meadows of Connecticut, where their place of destiny is at least no more distant than a fancied horizon. And so the fairyland vistas of the towers and parades with which Paul Dodd filled Susan's wide eyes, the Marvellous City of the Purple-Hooded Prince, came to resemble strikingly the evening look of the Plaza across the end of Central Park, the glistening pinnacle of the Ritz Towers in a morning sky, the multi-colored, buoyant throng of an upper Avenue noon.

It had been Paul Dodd's life, it seemed, to be given jobs he could not quite do. A friendly editor had told him once: "You've got no legs in you, Dodd. You always waver. It ruins your work and—probably your life." Yet, his career had gone, all but the dream of it, and Susan's mother had gone because there too his craftsmanship had failed. Somewhere along the line he had always bungled. And now there was only Susan, and he wouldn't have the chance to bungler things with her.

At the curb in front of the corner drug store Dr. Townson halted him, the old man's brooding, deeply lined face peering out from under the top of his runabout. "Just on my way over to your house, Dodd. Want to come along?"

They drove up the hill road where Dodd's small house stood white and clear against the meadow green. "This isn't your regular day to come, is it, Doctor?"

When they stopped at the gate a shrill piped welcome came down the wind: a tiny pink Susan and yelping, circling Twinkle, who was apparently better, had spotted their arrival from the hilltop fold and started for the house. They came slowly, Susan barely skipping, remembering that she must not race. Dr. Townson followed Dodd into his study.

When they were seated Dodd said, "All right now, Doctor. What is it?"

The doctor looked up out of his thought. He liked little Dodd. Years ago he himself had started out to be a New York doctor. Things had gone wrong. "Well, it's just that I think we ought to get a specialist up here at once. I know you had nerves, but he only confirmed my opinion. Let's try to get someone who won't—because she's getting worse, Dodd. Much worse. From the test I made last week I'm amazed that it has gone on at all."

Paul Dodd's gaze fell. "Well, that is only what we've known all along," he said. "Sometimes I think she's getting better, but—yes, you must be right. I'm ready, I guess."

"It's because I think you're not ready, Dodd, that I'm warning you now. What are you going to do? Afterward, I mean?"

The little man's eyes burned with an intense blue light. "That depends," he said. "When I first found out about Susan, several years ago, I couldn't understand why she had been put into the world at all. Little children are not always happy. This is not what you would call a little child's world. And so I started out to make a little child's world for Susan."

Dr. Townson took off his spectacles and wiped them with his handkerchief. "Guess you can't do that, Dodd. Pretty hard job to make a world of any kind."

"Yes," said Dodd. "It is hard. You've got to have lots of iron in you to do a job like that. It would be an easy job to—to—bungle."

"You don't want a specialist, then? We could get Harvey Preston for about five hundred. Just to be sure?"

"Of course I want to be sure," said Dodd. "He wouldn't come for two hundred? I've got two hundred."

"I'll tell you," said the doctor, rising. "Preston is the right sort. You give me the two hundred and I'll see if I can get him. He walked slowly down the path, with Susan holding on to his finger, and climbed into his battered runabout.

Susan returned to the porch. "I thought it was my doctor day," she said. "But he said he didn't have to hear me breathe because it wasn't."

Leaning against the door jamb, Dodd smiled. "No, I think this is the day we go driving to the Chooselate Tree. We'll have an extra driving day this week."

Susan jumped up and down with excitement. "Will the Chooselate Tree be sprouting vitamins, Daddy?"

"Why not?" said her father. "Sitting at the wheel of Bromley's old machine, which—if you looked at it in the right way—was as able to make far journeys into beautiful and fabulous lands as any other magic chariot, Paul Dodd acted as chauffeur for a princess the whole afternoon. They found the precise over which the Purple-Hooded Prince hurled the Naughty Dragon and the Peering Pond where the Princess Susanna first discovered her beauty and the Shining Highway would one day pass into the Marvellous City of the Purple-Hooded Prince."

In the end they found the Chooselate Tree and, strangely enough, it was sprouting caramels. Although Paul Dodd had in climb up to the second big branch to get even as many as four of them.

Susan was very tired that night, so weary as she sat humming to herself in her blue downstays playroom that it seemed too much trouble to turn the thick pages of her latest picture book or to shake her bubble pipe hard enough to make the bubbles come off. Finally she went to a bottom drawer and began searching among the small white garments.

Paul Dodd was in his study working upon another manuscript, of which, as usual, he had great hopes, when Susan brought her nightgown in. "Put it on me, Paul," she said. "Because my eyes are getting sticky. I must probably can't even stay for my story."

He glanced at her quickly and started her upstairs to her white bed. The manuscript poured down over the windblow. Susan revived a bit when she was tucked in. "I might as well go to sleep listening to a story as listening to nothing," she said. "Tell me about Princess Susanna."

He drew again for her the glamorous picture of gilded towers and bright parades. "And when the Princess appears in the front seat of her chariot, which is every bit as big as our car, all the people will thing were gay—if one but knew. She and Paul knew what a delightful business exception was. "Do you know what a dream I had last night? I dreamed that we had started out for the Marvellous City. Don't you think it's about time we did start, Paul? The Purple Princess may get tired of waiting. He might just take any old little princess. I think it's time we started. I mean really, Paul."

Mr. Wilcox and Dr. Townson

waited downstairs. The doctor had told Paul Dodd that he must be ready, for the would not test until morning. But Dodd knew better. He and Susan had a rendezvous to keep before she could go. So he remained there only until the white, blinking bus came down over her eyes again. Then he went down, Susan stopped in his study for a small roll of ten-dollar bills which he had left in his desk drawer and, mumbling something to the doctor about going to the village, left the house. Dr. Townson put his hand on Mrs. Wilcox's arm. "No," he said, "let him alone. Dodd knows what he's doing."

Susan waited until morning, the honest and earnest and patient, but ever even. Paul was dressing and she, in her very best white dress, her white socks, her patent leather slippers and everything, rested comfortably against a pillow in the seat beside him; for naturally she would not look her best when they arrived if she were tired. In the forenoon was a big brown paper bundle which Paul had packed up in the village and on the back seat, with his new carefully bound and saved fair count to the occasion, sat the apparently unimportant envelope of yesterday. So Bromley's old car struck the Boston Post Road to give it an unmitigated name, and headed southward for the Marvellous City of the Purple-Hooded Prince.

"I suppose it's far away over hill and down dale, isn't it, Paul?" asked Susan. "Could anybody but you find it?" She was like some beautifully fragile figurine in ivory with two intensely blue little dots painted in for eyes. It was an effort for her to talk, but no one told her not to. She just talked whenever she wanted, although as a mark of deference to the dignity of the day she had expressly forbidden her Twinkle to do any of his bawling.

Further down, for purposes of his own, Paul Dodd turned aside from the main route upon a road which led dangerously into high ground south of White Plains. They climbed a long hill, and then he brought the car to a halt, waiting for Susan to discover for herself. Presently she leaned forward, excited, pointing with three fingers at once. "Look,

Paul! See! 'Way over there, it's it!"

A hazy distance stretched away below them, and at its farthest, seeming to appear above a faintly purple border of horizon cloud, rose a subtlest profusion of towers, visible intermittently and then only at their sun-gilded peaks.

"It's just what you said, Paul," said Susan. "But presently, smiling and sighing in her content, she was asleep again."

She must have been asleep for a long time. When she opened her eyes and sat up again, she could hardly believe it. She was in the very heart of the Marvellous City, with all the great houses made of big stones and all the shining windows and all the twenty hundred towers in two great parades, one going each way, and all the thirty hundred towers in the middle, and the purple and, for the first time, the road of the Marvellous City, she knew she would hear them say, "Oh, it's the beautiful little Princess Susanna herself!"

Susan could see very plainly that all eyes were bent upon her triumphal chariot—as, indeed, many of them were bent her sense of obligation rose to the moment. She stood in the back and waved and smiled, especially when anybody waved to her. Occasionally she gave a shy glance at her Paul, as if to say: "You know it would be like this, don't you?"

Up ahead a whistle blew to herald her approach, and a great light

blinked red. Their car stopped when a huge man in blue and buttons held up his hand and saluted them, and then still another parade passed in review right before their eyes. Susan was so thrilled, she stood up again and waved to everybody who waved to her.

Subsiding when they moved on again, she watched Paul to see how he was taking all this. "Don't you think we ought to be hurrying on to the Palace?" she asked. "Maybe he won't like us waiting here and we'll miss that big parade!" She pointed down the avenue of a massive structure of steel and stone building in terraced sections until its bright domes seemed drawn against the sky.

"His palace is taller even than that," said Paul Dodd.

"Oh!" said Susan again. "And will he be waiting in his purple robe?"

He will probably come out on the balcony and throw down flowers when we come," said Paul.

Susan's impressions were blurred. Twice more she sat up and pointed out sky-reaching towers which surely must be "it." But each time Paul said: "Faster than that, Susan! Many names were also on Paul Dodd's lips. They had come down from Avenue and crossed to Park and now moved slowly northward between its square bulks of stone toward a stupendous white column, crowned in the mighty poetry of the genius of New York and mounting infinitely to some pinpoint zenith of the imagination against the blue. Some called it the Flat Towers and people lived there and paid rent, but Paul Dodd called it the Palace of the Purple-Hooded Prince. "There, Susan," he said, "there."

While they waited, Susan lay back against her pillow, reaching out her hand toward the great white tower as if she wanted to pull it to her. Then it loomed suddenly over them, and the car stopped still at the very gate. "Where is he?" Susan asked. "He's waiting on his purple robe."

"I think he is," said Paul Dodd. "I think he will soon appear on that balcony. Do you see the balcony, Susan? Now I'll go inside and announce that the beautiful little Princess Susanna is here at last."

He took the brown paper bundle from the forenoon and strolled into a garden and down into the dim interior. He was gone a minute, a portentous minute for Paul Dodd. But two of his ten-dollar bills and the link of finding an Irish bell boy was all that he needed.

Susan did not even look at him when he took his seat at the wheel again, although her hand reached out and closed upon his fingers. Her next gasp was upon the answer: "Paul! I didn't come!"

Paul Dodd's eyes were upon the balcony, too, although he could not see. He could only wait for Susan's explanation of delight, her quick, tight grip upon his fingers while his arm supported her. "Oh!" he said. "So him, Paul! He has on his purple robe, and his crown has golden points. Catch the crown, Paul! He is throwing me his blossom!" Then he felt her little form relax and he knew that the Princess Susanna had been crowned forevermore in a kingdom which was never in this world.

Bromley's old machine moved slowly forward to the next cross street with Paul Vane Dodd at the wheel. Once more his stature seemed to have increased, until he was not a little man at all. He was a man whose soul was full of iron, and eased in the iron was a rare and precious treasure which could never be taken from him and the possession of which made him mighty and unconquerable. It was a treasure he had made himself, without bawling and with the craftsmanship to the very end. He smiled at the stone of New York, which was only pretty to be misused, after all. He spoke the name of Susan, and his voice descended out the noise of a metropolis.

Use Electricity To Slay Pests Ruining Crops

(International News Service)
PONCA CITY, Okla., Sept. 27.—By attracting electricity from the air and the ground, V. K. Stanley, a Ponca City electrician, asserts he has been able to eliminate all pests from his garden, mature vegetables and fruit quicker and is now getting fruit from apple trees which were diseased.

Stanley started his system three years ago, but he did not get any results the first year. The second season it was an easy matter to measure the results, and this past season his method is creating considerable attention.

Increases Crop

In addition to increasing the size of fruits and vegetables, the electrifying of the ground improves the flavor to a noticeable extent, according to Stanley. Popcorn grew to be the size of field corn, but the size and character of the kernels remains the same. Along with it the yield of popcorn was trebled over that grown on ordinary soil.

He said that "electrified" apple trees, which never bore anything but inferior grades before now bear excellent fruit. Potatoes developed quickly, although the vines were a yard in height and did not blossom at all.

In working out the mechanics of this garden Stanley said he attempted to design a system which would take electricity from the earth and the air and make it available for growing plants.

The garden is laid out in parallel furrows, running three yards apart, about three yards apart. Particular pains were taken to see that the furrows were exactly parallel with the meridian.

Current in Ground

Into these furrows Stanley laid galvanized iron wires the length of the furrows and about a foot under the surface of the ground. The wire to the north was sunk into the earth to the permanent moisture line, while to the south it was led up to a 20-foot pole, ending at the top in an antenna.

The antenna is supposed to receive the atmospheric or positive electricity and conduct it into the ground along the iron wires in the furrows. There it unites with the negative electricity collected there by the network of ground wires, and thus, Stanley said, forms the natural animating force which acts directly upon the roots of plants or trees.

Heat and other energy also is carried to the plants by catching the sun's rays from the great mirrors of the two dissimilar metals, copper and zinc, and conveys them to the roots, according to Stanley.

By Ways And Woods

By OWEN PENFIELD FOX

Since early spring I have spent many hours in the woods. I have watched the birds and small game rear their young. I found many nests of rabbits, numerous coveys of quail, some fox squirrels, rungees and coons.

But as I watch the coming of fall and visit the locations where I had found broods of young raised, the question comes up, where have they gone. We may point to the owls, the hawks, but the greatest destroyer of small wild game is the house cat gone wild. These cats very often are the undesirable ones dropped by the wayside by people who give little thought to the results of such an act.

Then there are homes that are located near the woods which have dogs. They, too, become killers of game if not properly fed.

A short time ago I spent the night in a distant woods, to be near a spot where I thought I might hear the call of the whippoorwill, and when the sun came in early morn I walked to the highway where the autumn winds were rolling the new fallen leaves along like tumble-weeds. And as I went my way I counted six mangled rabbits, one possum and a skunk. These all within a few miles.

This killing caused by the automobile, quite a toll of wild life. So let us in our busy life give some consideration to our bird life and wild game, as this would be indeed a dull life without them.

MAKE SLIPPERY ROCK ACCESSIBLE

The Editor of The News,
Dear Sir:

May I be permitted a few words concerning the beautiful Slippery Rock river? I read in the papers the discussion that is now going on, and feel inclined to add my suggestion.

I know nothing of the merits of the case so far as the financial side is concerned. Perhaps the dams ought to be built. Perhaps they ought not to be built. Perhaps the scenery would be destroyed, perhaps it would not be.

But my suggestion is in place I feel, which ever decision is reached. The beauty of the Slippery Rock, whether it remains as it is now or is altered by the construction of water power units, ought to be made accessible. I have made my way on a few occasions far enough along this river to realize that it is one of the beauty spots of the state. But there are very few people who ever see the real beauty of this river, simply because no steps have been taken to open roads thru to the places of interest.

During the past decade many good roads have been built out from our city to the adjoining centers of population. This was necessary from the standpoint of business, and was rightly cared for first. But may it not be possible that we have reached the day when a little money might be used to open a few roads that would serve as pleasure drives, perhaps more than for business reasons.

New Castle has no parks within her bounds, and some folks feel that we should have such accommodations. Realizing that the day of the automobile is here, and that people think nothing of a five or even a twenty five mile ride after supper, I should say that the finest park in the world would be open to the people of New Castle, if a good road could be surveyed say from the bridge at Rose Point down the Slippery Rock into Ellicott City.

If this could be done, then we might enjoy the beauty of that scenery, and I for one would not care whether they constructed a few dams across the river or not. It would be my judgment that if all these improvements could be made along a few miles of that river, you would see large picnic parties enjoying their evenings at the various points of interest, and thus the beautiful Slippery Rock could serve many purposes.

The one point I make in this letter is simply that the time has come to make the beauties of that river more accessible. Let us have a road built that will follow right down that river for a few miles, and then the scenery will become useful to the multitudes.

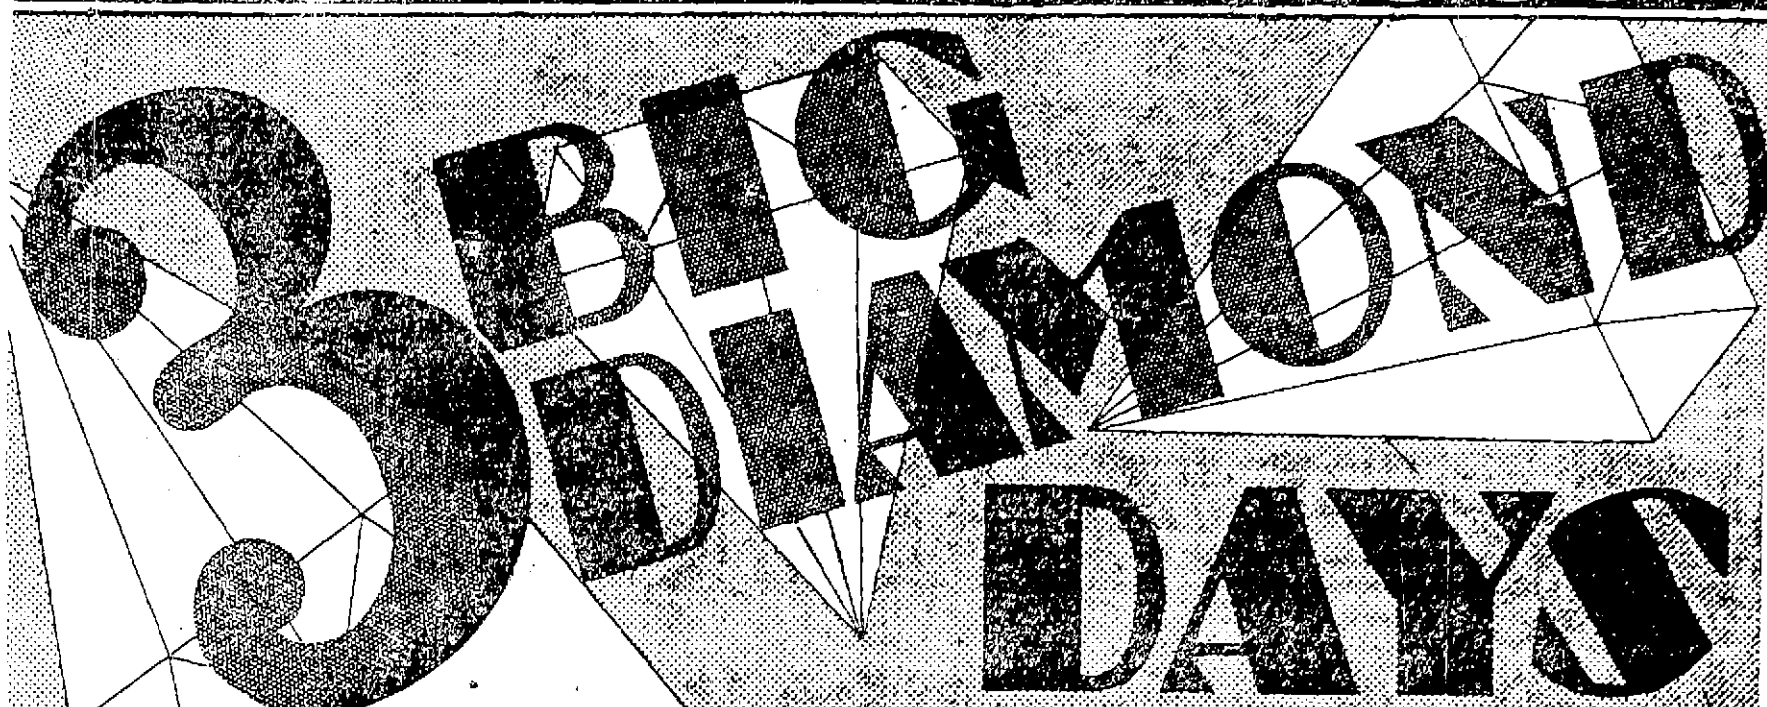

Yours truly,
W. E. McCURE.

SLIPPERY ROCK PROJECT
Editor of "News"
My Dear Sir:
I also have an interest in the possible transformation of the environs of the beautiful Slippery Rock river, hence I would like to add a thought or two to the discussion which I have read from time to time.

There are many scenic spots in Pennsylvania but the scenery as a whole is somewhat conspicuous for the lack of lakes. Compare in your mind the beauty of New York or the New England States with that of Pennsylvania. Hence any procedure which will create a lake in this State will create beauty.

In a measure we can judge the future by the past—the damming of this stream detract and ruin a beautiful spot? Will it turn people away or will it attract? What has such a procedure done in other localities? The Susquehanna River was dammed a few years ago—the Conowingo Dam—at a point midway between Philadelphia and Baltimore and I saw this locality both before and afterward. I cannot describe my feelings when I saw the large and beautiful body of water and the pleasing transformation which took place afterward. I dare

The Story Of The World War
125—The Russian Masses Demand Peace

IN THE SPRING OF 1917 THE RUSSIAN MASSES WERE HEARTILY OPPOSED TO CONTINUING THE WAR. THEY WANTED PEACE SO THAT THEY MIGHT ENJOY THE NEW FREEDOM WON BY THE RECENT REVOLUTION. THE SOVIET PROPOSED AN IMMEDIATE PEACE ON THE BASIS OF NO AN- NEXATIONS, NO INDEMNITIES AND SELF-DETERMI- NATION FOR ALL PEOPLES.

HE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT UNDER PRESSURE OF THE SOVIET WAS FORCED TO PUB- LICLY DECLARE ITSELF IN FAVOR OF THIS PRO- POSAL, BUT WHEN MILUKOFF, MINISTER FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS, SENT COPIES OF THIS DECLARATION TO RUSSIAN MINISTERS ABROAD HE AT- TACHED A NOTE TO THE ALLIES ASSURING THEM THAT RUSSIA'S POSITION RELATIVE TO THE WAR REMAINED UNCHANGED.

MAY 3, 1917, THIS NOTE WAS PUBLISHED. THE SOVIET WAS ENRAGED, AND ANGRY DEMONSTRATIONS AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT FOLLOWED. MILUKOFF RESIGNED, BUT THE DAMAGE WAS BEYOND REPAIR. THIS INCIDENT FILLED THE RUSSIAN MASSES WITH DISTRUST OF THE PRO- VISIONAL GOVERNMENT.

THE BOLSHEVISTS STEADILY DREW FOLLOW- ERS FROM THE MORE MODERATE POLITICAL PARTIES. BOLSHEVIST AGITATORS WERE BUSY IN THE RANKS OF THE ARMY, ADDING FUEL TO THE GENERAL UNREST. THE NUMBER OF DESER- TIONS ROSE HIGHER EVERY DAY.

New Castle-Rayen Ready For Football Game

High School Teams In Fine Condition

New Castle High Football Team Faces Acid Test Tonight, Coach Bridenbaugh Is Pessimistic; Rayen Will Bring Strong Team To Franklin Field; Game Will Start At 8:30 O'Clock; Expect Large Crowd.

PROBABLE LINEUPS OF TONIGHT GAME

New Castle		Rayen
Mooney	left-end	Wolfe
Cunningham	left-tackle	Chrison
Hart	left-guard	Yancy
Ciccone	center	McCarthy
Binder	right-guard	Paschell
Deep	right-tackle	Libbee
Jones	right-end	Hubbard
McAuley	quarter-back	Flauto
Alexander	right-half	Jim Smith
Hannon	left-half	Cumisky
M. McIntosh	fullback	Farrar
Officials—Referee, "Cal" Bolster, W. & J. Umpire—"Ed" Howells, Ohio State. Head-linesman—Joe Smith, Penn State.

(By "BUGS" WAITHER)

A N AIR of suspense, a strained feeling permeated the Franklin Field today. Hundreds of football fans are waiting for tonight's game. Two highly trained gridiron machines, New Castle and Rayen await the start of the game.

It has been a long wait, another New Castle High School-Rayen High football battle. Twelve years since the last meeting. Both teams have had varied success over the stretch of intervening years.

Coach "Phil" Bridenbaugh in his characteristic manner when interviewed today shrugged his shoulders and when asked as to the outcome and the chances for a New Castle victory, said "An even break." Mr. Bridenbaugh never in his life conceded himself anything. He refuses to concede the victory to the red and black clad huskies tonight. Over in Youngstown the talk of course is all Rayen. They believe across the line that Rayen High will be able to solve the heretofore impregnable defense of the Lawrence Cubsians.

Rayen Seeks Glory Where South High failed last year. Rayen High hopes to succeed this season. Later on in the year New Castle meets South, and Rayen desires to make a great showing against New Castle.

New Castle High School with a fairly well balanced team, will go on the field tonight, filled with determination, confidence, and fighting spirit. Coach Bridenbaugh will have the boys as near perfect tonight as is possible. This past week, the squad has had several intense workouts at the stadium. They are fit and ready to play the game of their young lives.

Watch Forward Passes Both New Castle and Rayen will take to the aerial route in their quest of the honors. Forward passing will play a big part in tonight's battle. Last Friday night New Castle showed they had a clever passing attack by several heaves against Grove City. Rayen High used the "cone" quite a bit in their 21 to 6 victory over Weir High of Weirton, West Virginia.

As for the weights of the teams, Rayen will have a little on New Castle in the forward wall or front line, but New Castle will make up for this by taking a decided edge on the backfield weight. Rayen has almost a veteran line. New Castle will have an entirely new line, with the exception of Ciccone at center.

In the backfield department Coach Bridenbaugh's ball hawks will be on an even footing with the shifty Rayen backs. "Red" McAuley will again bark signals. Hannon and Alexander will take care of the end running jobs, and Merle "B" McIntosh will attempt to hurl his 180 pounds of beef and brawn through the Rayen line. In the opening game the red and black backfield worked smoothly. They have possibilities of developing into a fine set of ball-carriers.

Farrar Is Goal! New Castle will have to keep an eye pooled for this man Farrar. He is reputed to be the "goods" in the opening game last week young Farrar was the whole works. In Flauto, Smith and Cumisky, Coach Lansing has three other good backfield men. Rayen is pinning their hopes on Farrar being able to crash the New Castle line effectively. Smith and Cumisky will have the job of ripping off yards around the ends and through tackles.

In reserve material New Castle will not doubt have an edge on the invaders. In Hoese, Jamieson, McIntosh, and others New Castle will have several fine "shock troops" to toss in the fray in case they are needed. Ralph H. Gardner, faculty manager has made preparations to take care of a mammoth crowd tonight. Youngstown will send many hundreds of fans to this city. Rayen High is bringing their 50 piece band. New Castle's band will also be out there at the stadium tooting out some nice music.

Two new ticket windows, at both ends of the concrete stands will help eliminate the confusion of the opening game.

The kickoff is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock Daylight Time.

Walter Berger To Play Saturday In Opening Grid Game

Allegheny College Grid Fans Happy Because Berger Is Fit For Geneva Game

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 27.—Meadville fans are rejoicing today because the past two weeks of scrimmaging has demonstrated that Walter Berger, star half-back on the Allegheny team, is in perfect condition for the opening football game here next Saturday against Geneva college.

Berger did Allegheny's forward passing last season, and was considered one of the best backs in the entire Tri-State district. He will round out a fine quartet for the Allegheny backfield. The others are Garbisch, full-back; Varnano, half-back, and Slaughter, quarter-back.

The game with Geneva next Saturday is attracting more attention than any opening game ever staged at Allegheny. Geneva has produced fine teams during the past four years, and it is reported that this year's eleven is considerably stronger than that of last year. Geneva has a fast running and brilliant forward passing attack which was inaugurated there by Bo McMullan. The Allegheny system for Saturday's game is a new one in this district, and can best be described as a combination of the Princeton and Warner systems. It is impossible to predict who will be the victor in the coming contest, but it is certain that the game will be close and hard-fought.

Freshies Get Orders From Upper Classmen Up At Westminster

Regulations governing the dress and actions of members of the freshman class at Westminster were announced yesterday by the Upper Class committee of the college. The regulations were passed upon by a faculty committee in a meeting Wednesday night.

The rules and regulations designed to show the yearling's rightful place in the collegiate scheme of things, go into effect September 30. Penalty for infractions of rules will be court-martial by the Upper Class Discipline committee.

All members of the freshman class, are ordered by the regulations to show preference to faculty members and upper classmen, to learn all Westminster songs and yells, to wear dressing caps and armbands at all times, to enter Old Main Memorial building by the east door only, not to enter the tower room of the new building nor to walk on the south terrace, not to date until after October 14, not to wear any high school mittie jewelry or insignia, and to speak to all faculty members and students.

Freshmen are ordered to wear green Windsor ties and white cotton stockings until the close of the football season, to tip froth hats to faculty members and upperclassmen and women, to keep their hands out of their pockets, to furnish matches on request, and not to smoke anything but corn-cob pipes.

Co-eds in the first-year class are ordered to wear black cotton hose until the end of the football season, to wear purple hair ribbons, not to use cosmetics until after October 14, to wear white cards with names printed thereon, and to report on the south terrace at 4:30, Friday, October 4, equipped and ready to play "jacks". All rules are suspended in the classroom and from 6 p. m. Saturdays until 6 a. m. Mondays. Upperclassmen have the right of rebuking and correcting all disobedient and erring freshmen and of reporting infractions of the rules to the Upper Class committee.

FANS RAVE OVER BELGIAN CHAMP

Kosky And Belgian To Settle Issue At Bowl Monday Night When Bouts Start At 8:30 P. M. Eastern Standard Time; Mozdy Meets Mickie Farr In Six Round Semi-Final.

By ED. FRITZ

Billy Jolly, boxing promoter apparently resides under a lucky star as the engineer-fistic impresario got another big break Wednesday when Willie Michele, featherweight champion of Belgium, not only captured a 10 round decision from Johnny Farr, Cleveland, O., at Youngstown, but thrilled the fight bugs with thrills.

The writer gave Michele a shade decision. Mike McHale, Sports Editor of the Telegram, Youngstown, and now a referee for the major bouts, in Cleveland, gave the "duke" to the Belgian and Frank Ward, Sports Editor, Victoriano, Youngstown, also gave the decision to Willie and could not say too many nice things about the fight.

Michele was brought to this section by the writer acting as the matchmaker for Billy Jolly. He was to have fought Kosky but when rain poured down torrentially and the streets overflowed it was decided to postpone the show until September 30 and in the meantime the police of Youngstown, anxious for a good fight, were given the Belgian.

Stranger Now Popular And the Belgian who came to this section is now firmly entrenched in the affection of fans and a considerable number have already commenced predicting that the Belgian will win. He may and he may not. Personally we don't care a rap. All we want is a bank-up fight with a lot of thrills for the fight bugs.

Frank Ward in the Victoriano yesterday said, "In one of the speediest ring battles ever staged in Youngstown, Willie Michele, Belgium, outpointed Johnny Farr, Cleveland in 10 rounds." Ward said the Belgian not only proved a turtar for busy Farr at times electrified the crowd with punching and footwork.

According to the veteran scribe the Belgian is not a slugging wallower but he is as busy as a hive of bees and apparently hits from any angle with comparative ease. He paid credit to Farr and said it was John's best fight in Youngstown. He says Michele is one of Europe's outstanding stars now in the United States.

And Mike McHale of the Telegram who said it was a lively encounter with the popular decision going to the Belgian. "Farr fought his usual fight but against the clever and elusive Michele he did not seem to get anywhere," McHale said of Willie making Farr miss, how clever he is and of the damage he committed.

Knocks Farr Down

"Michele also caught Farr coming in and off balance in the fourth and floored him prettily with a right uppercut that disconnected Johnny more than it hurt him." After that McHale wrote, they staged many exchanges. All the fans agreed with McHale and Ward about the good fight and a better one may be staged here Monday.

Michele is apt to steal away Farr's thunder. Johnny is matched to fight Al Singer at Madison Square garden and he may be given the assignment. With a nice fat purse and this in front Kosky will try to steal Michele's chances of displacing Farr in New York. They have good records and the issue will be settled at the bowl Monday.

Johnny Farr's brother, Mickie, a flyweight will take on Leo Mozdy. It will be Mickie's first real start. He is a Cleveland. We have never seen him fight but his manager and brother say he will give Leo a tussle. He will have to be pretty good to hold the conqueror of Frisco Grande even in the six round bout.

Lester Duke, Denning the sneaky manager of Jack Hernandez, Maxie Strub and also Joey Novak reports that Joey hurt his arm training yesterday and cannot fight. Battling Thomas, Rochester, N. Y., lightweight so another opponent will have to be secured. These are the kind of breaks that come every now and then.

Two "Slam" Battles There will be two four whirls in which Young Osey, East Side, a new comer will meet a chap named Kid Eazer of Beaver Falls. If they live up to predictions there'll be a good scrap. Young Plume, heavyweight here with Jimmie Dime will get his first ring start against Young Eddy, a big lad and a first timer from Sagamore.

Monday night the bouts will start at 8:30 p. m. Eastern Standard or old time. Daylight Savings time will become past Sunday. Fans should remember the starting time has been changed. The bell will ring promptly and on account of Michele having beat Farr and Kosky being a south-paw star of the west there ought to be a big crowd.

It is believed that this league can be made one of the fastest and best in the district in another season and plans with that object in view will be made at that time.

Eight Veterans Face Fordham

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 27.—Eight lettermen form the nucleus of Coach "Dike" Beede's Westminster College football team which opens the season against Fordham University at New York City Saturday. The veterans are: Captain Russell

H. M. Frew made the high score in the weekly shoot at the New Castle Field Club Wednesday, smashing 47 out of 50 birdies. L. C. Johns followed with 44 points and Miller was third with 42 as his score. Scores were as follows:

William Moore—40.
William W. Horner—40.
J. S. Lamoree—40.
Joe McCoy—38.
Robert Mackey—38.
William Woodworth—38.
H. M. Wirsing—38.
Jared Reis—38.
Dr. Lindley—36.
Grenier—35.

The next field club shoot will occur on Wednesday evening, October 2, at 5 p. m.

City County League Plans Celebration

Will Hold Big Get-Together Meeting In Near Future

Plans were tentatively made at the meeting of the managers of the City County League held last night for a get together meeting and feed for all the players of the various teams of the league.

It is planned to hold this some time during the first week of October and will be in the nature of a feed and general good time, with a meeting held for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for the operation of the league in 1930.

Four American Women Golfers In Canadian Tourney

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 27.—For the first time in the history of the event four American golfers were to tee off today in the semi-final round of the Women's Canadian open golf championship.

Miss Glenna Collett, Miss Helen Hicks, Miss Edith Quier and Mrs. Stewart Hanley yesterday made certain that the 1929 title would rest in America by eliminating the last of the Canadian golfers.

Plan For Church Bowling League

Seven Churches Plan To Enter Map Preliminary Plans Thursday

Representatives from seven New Castle churches attended a meeting of the bowling league schedule makers at the Y. M. C. A. last night and drafted plans for the coming winter league.

The date upon which the league will get under way was agreed upon and a schedule will be drawn up shortly. Churches which have not already made arrangements to enter can still do so for a few days' grace has been granted to permit other teams to join.

Churches who had representatives at the meeting last night were the First Baptist, Central Christian, Congregational, Mahoning, Central Presbyterian, First M. E. and Croton M. E. Henry T. MacNicholas of the Y. M. C. A. will gladly enter other churches in the league if representatives communicate with him immediately.

FACE WRINKLES

Try binding the forehead with a linen bandage soaked in equal parts of alcohol and the white of an egg, allowing the bandage to remain over night.

Westminster Squad Leaves New Castle For Fordham Game

Twenty Westminster college football players, Coach "Dike" Campbell, Graduate Manager A. A. McDonald, Student Managers Leon Hilbrand, Canton, O., and George Cosmos, Union City, N. J., left New Castle this morning at 7:30 for New York City where Fordham university will be met in the opening game of the season Saturday afternoon at Fordham field.

The Westminster squad will be entertained by New York alumni while in the city. Headquarters will be at Hotel Wentworth, 46th street. The party will leave the metropolis late Saturday night by sleeper, arriving in New Wilmington Sunday about noon.

Although Captain Russell Boone, Turtle Creek, made the trip with the team, the plucky center will not don a uniform for the game. He will be replaced by either George Cebula, Campbell, O., or Harvey Seifert, Erie.

It is hoped that he will be in shape for the Allegheny game at Meadville next Saturday.

Those who made the trip are: Backs—Robert Decker, Sharpville; Bert Tate, West Middlesex; Harry Michaels, Turtle Creek; Samuel Morrison, Turtle Creek; Adrian Dible, Verona; Paul Campbell, Pittsburgh; John Hall, Youngstown, O.; and Ben Hady, Turtle Creek.

Linebackers—Russell Boone, Turtle Creek; George Cebula, Campbell, O.; Harvey Seifert, Erie; Donald Cleland, Portersville; Gerry Sweet, Erie; Joseph Dombrowski, Elizabeth; Homer Dishong, Johnstown; Glenn Rehfus, Sandusky, O.; Joseph Pipoly, Struthers, O.; Richard Fuller, Erie; Emmett Tweedy, Turtle Creek; and Harry Browne, Lock Haven.

In all probability, Coach Beede will start Merriman at quarter, Michele at full, Hady at right half, and Dible at left half. On the line, Tweedy and Pipoly will start at end, Dombrowski and Cleland or Dishong at tackle, Fuller and Sweet or Cebula at guard, and either Cebula or Seifert at center. This will give the Titans a backfield averaging about 156 and a line averaging 174. Coach Cavanaugh's Fordham team is much heavier, and in addition to Maroon veterans, last year's strong freshman team is available. On paper, the New Yorkers are four touchdowns better than the Titans.

Grovers Hope To Defeat Adrian

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 27.—Coach Charley Berry said today that the Crimson eleven would hold light signal drills for the remainder of the week in an effort to polish off the rough sports before the opener against Adrian Saturday. The Crimson coach seemed optimistic over the team's chances, and expressed himself as being pleased with the training period just closed.

No definite lineup has been given out for the first game and it is expected that the Crimson mentor will make numerous changes no matter who starts the fray. Moss Lantz, veteran center, who has a semi-fractured skull following an automobile accident, has been practicing the last ten days and is determined to be at his post in the opening game. Berry would make no comment on whether he would allow him to start or not.

Adrian, reported to have their best team in years, is coming here with the idea of upsetting Grove City and avenging the one-sided defeat administered them two years ago. Captain Marcus Rankin and his teammates have been warned against over-confidence and are not taking the game lightly by any means.

Following the Adrian game Berry's team will meet four hard opponents in St. Francis, John Carroll, Westminster, and Geneva.
